PRESIDENT CALLED 'NASTY GAMIN'

Coal Picture Has Solon Jittery

Congress Urged Stay In Session

WASHINGTON, June 10—Rep. Hartley, (R) N. J., called on Congress today to scrap early adjournment plans and remain in session to deal with a threatened Summer coal strike of John L. Lewis' 400,000 soft coal miners.

The co-author of the Taft-Hartley labor law declared that it is "obvious" that the current contract discussions between Lewis and the mine owners will lead only to a mine shutdown because the union chief "is not bargaining in good faith."

The existing mine wage agreement expires June 30 and the miners traditionally do not work without a contract.

Hartley declared the 10-day vacation of the miners June 26 to July 6 would wipe out the existing three-week stockpile of coal.

The New Jersey legislator said he fears that the Taft-Hartley law, although it may be invoked against Lewis by President Truman, will not be sufficient to head off another coal production stoppage.

IN THE second day of court-order bargaining talks, Lewis offered to extend the current contract until a new pact is completed, if the mine owners would agree to put the $39 mil-

Soviets Tighten Border Leading To British Zone

BERLIN, June 10—Russian military authorities virtually sealed off the border between the Soviet and British occupation zones of Germany today, intensifying pressure against Western Allied forces in Berlin.

The Paris newspaper L'Intransigeant published a report saying Moscow is sending General Schdarnov, member of the Communist politburo to Berlin to launch a campaign to oust the Western powers by July.

The Soviet action follows a request by the British that the Russians evacuate the Radio Berlin building in the British sector of the former German capital. The Russians refused.

The Russians instituted new curbs on rail traffic and now have begun halting buses and autos at both ends of the Berlin-Helmstedt auto highway.

The Russians announced that all German commercial travelers who wish to enter the Soviet zone must first furnish a list of firms they intend to visit.

Casual German crossers of the border must fully justify their visits.

ONE MAN'S OPINION

"Kissing Jim" will not be a delegate to the national Democratic convention. This will relieve a television crew for active duty elsewhere.

Alabama Democrats decided that a delegate who is apt to remove his shoes and socks while electioneering was not the man to send to Philadelphia where there is the possibility of also losing a shirt.

Anyway civil rights are on the upgrade again. The supreme court has ruled that any one can hire a loudspeaker and jaw at the populace without a local permit. The market for ear muffs has taken a sharp upturn.

MEMBERS of the Ohio Valley Second Frontier advisory board meet at Author Louis Bromfield's farm at Mansfield to make plans for the largest soil conservation demonstration ever attempted in the U. S. The show will be held Sept. 23-24 on 322 acres of Ohio River valley soil, on a farm on U. S. Route 35, between Jackson and Gallipolis. In the photo are (from left) Bromfield, R. M. Ramsey, president of the Federal Reserve bank of Cleveland; H. C. Ramsower, Ohio State university district agricultural extension agent; Walter Frye, national president of the Izaak Walton League, and Jim Wells, associate state forester.

U. S. Labor Chief Dies

Heart Attack Fells Sec. Schwellenbach

WASHINGTON, June 10—Secretary of Labor Lewis B. Schwellenbach died unexpectedly today of a heart attack and President Truman quickly expressed 'deepest grief" at the death of the cabinet member, his close personal friend.

The White House announced that Schwellenbach, who was 53, died at Walter Reed hospital, Washington, at 5:40 a. m. (EST). Mrs. Schwellenbach was at her husband's bedside when death came.

Mr. Truman, who went to the hospital to visit Schwellenbach on the eve of the chief executive's departure for the west coast last week, was in the secretary's home state of Washington when he learned of his death.

The President said:

"I have heard with deepest grief of the death of Lewis Schwellenbach. He was my warm personal friend. He was a

House Panel Snubs TEW Bill

WASHINGTON, June 10 — The House banking committee defeated a Democratic attempt today to substitute the Taft-Ellender-Wagner housing bill for the Wolcott measure which provides for no public housing.

The vote was 14 to 12 against the motion with one member—Rep. Folger, (D) N. C.—voting present.

Athens Thrilled As Mike, Anne Are Married

ATHENS, June 10—Athens thrilled momentarily today to a bit of old world romance when Romania's King Michael took Princess Anne of Bourbon-Parma as his bride.

Private as the marriage was in the royal palace of Athens where the youthful couple was joined in wedlock by Archbishop Damaskinos, the pageantry of the ceremony was reflected in the somber streets of the Greek capital.

Inside the palace, the 24-year-old French and Danish princess was escorted to the altar by her uncle, Prince Eric of Denmark.

Anne's gown was of rose-colored embroidered tulle, with matching veil and an 11-foot long train which was carried by three pages.

Columbia River Rising Again

PORTLAND, June 10 — The Columbia river was rising again today as thousands of civilians and soldiers strove to strengthen dikes that have been classed as 'critical" for several days.

The Red Cross, meanwhile, issued a list of 121 former Vanport residents about whom it is concerned. It made clear that it does not consider them dead or missing, however.

The known death toll in the flood stood at 31 and property damage is climbing steadily after passing the $100 million mark.

Dixie Demo Revolt Flops

Face-Saving Move Now Afoot, Claim

ATLANTA, June 10—A sudden collapse of the Dixie revolt against the national Democratic party, followed by an effort to make a face-saving compromise seemed to be shaping up today.

Leaders of the South's so-called rebellion have admitted that their stock is sinking.

Authoritative sources at Jackson, Miss., reported today that the steering committee of States' Rights Democrats may try to make its peace with the national party before the July 12 convention at Philadelphia.

Veteran political observers claim that Gov. Fielding L. Wright of Mississippi, is convinced that a party bolt would gain only token adherence.

Arkansas' Gov. Ben Laney apparently has replaced Gov. Wright as the leading figure in the states' rights forces and his attitude is known to be more

Super-Rocket Plane Cracks Sound Speed 'Many Times'

WASHINGTON, June 10 — Air Secretary Symington disclosed today that a super-rocket plane, the United States Air Force's XS-1, has been flown faster than the speed of sound "many times" since testing began last October.

Symington announced officially that the aircraft, perhaps the world's fastest, has been flight-tested repeatedly at the Muroc Air Force base in California.

Symington, for security reasons, did not reveal the actual speed attained by the rocket ship, but it is believed to have shattered all known records.

Aviation experts pointed out that the speed of sound is 750 miles per hour at sea level and it varies at different altitudes.

The world speed record was chalked up last year at Muroc by Marine Corps Lt. Col. Marion Carl, who flew a Douglas D-558 "Skystreak" 650.8 miles per hour.

Symington said, however, that the Air Force "will not claim altitude or speed records in connection with these flights."

The secretary's use of the word "altitude" indicated that the rocket plane, in addition to its record-breaking speed, may have zoomed to hitherto unrecorded heights.

Symington explained that he had decided to announce the speed accomplishments of the new plane after the Justice department informed him that "earlier publication of this previously classified fact did not constitute a violation of federal law."

THIS WAS in reference to publication by an aviation magazine of a detailed account of the S-1'Xs successful flight through the sonic barrier.

The XS-1, built by Bell Aircraft Corp., is powered by four rocket motors.

Small enough to be launched from the bomb bay of a B-29, it was designed originally to fly at a speed of more than 1,500 miles per hour and to reach an altitude of 80,000 feet.

Senate Nears Final Vote On Its Draft Bill Version

WASHINGTON, June 10 — Final Senate passage of the draft bill is expected today but House action may be delayed unless an iron-clad agreement is reached to adjourn Congress June 19.

The Senate agreed following its third day-night session to begin voting this afternoon on the measure to draft men 19 through 25 for two years of military service.

After meeting for more than 13 hours, the upper chamber recessed at 12:30 a. m. until noon when debate was resumed. A vote will be taken on any amendments remaining and the actual measure itself.

As final passage neared, the House GOP leadership announced its intention to bring up the bill next week. But informed sources predicted that if there is any delay in adjournment, originally set for June 19, the House rules committee will keep the bill in a pigeonhole for the present.

SENATE leaders have expressed belief that Congress cannot adjourn sine die before the Republican presidential convention this month but must meet again in the two weeks preceding the Democratic convention to clear up pending work. House chieftains disagree.

Before recessing early this morning, the Senate ended a bitter fight by refusing to place on President Truman responsibility for starting the draft.

Under the House bill, inductions cannot begin for 75 days after the bill becomes law. Mr. Truman can begin the draft after that time only by proclaiming it is necessary.

Following are the main provisions of the Senate bill:

1. A draft of men 19 through 25 years of age for two years military service.
2. Inductions begin as soon as draft machinery is set up.
3. Permits 161,000 18-year-olds to enlist for one year service in the continental United States.
4. Streamline court martial procedure in the Army and Air Force.
5. Permit the enlistment of 25,000 non-citizens for regular service.

Stassen Joins Vandenberg's Rap At House Slash Of ERP Program

WASHINGTON, June 10—Harold E. Stassen told Congress today that failure to support the full foreign aid appropriation would "tarnish the national honor of our country."

The Republican presidential aspirant also said that the "constructive" record of Congress on foreign policy would be injured if the full amount of reconstruction aid is not voted.

Stassen interrupted his campaign for the GOP nomination to testify before the Senate appropriations committee.

He was the fourth announced or potential candidate to oppose the House slash in funds for world recovery.

Senate Leader Robert Taft, who is near the head of the list of White House aspirants, said he had no intention of asking to testify on the bill, as did Senate President Vandenberg, (R) Mich. Taft, steering clear of the House-Senate battle, simply said:

"I'm for the committee—for whatever the committee does."

Vandenberg, a leading dark horse presidential possibility, denounced what he called the "meat-ax technique" of the House reduction in a dramatic appearance Wednesday. His statement was applauded by Gov. Earl Warren of California an announced GOP candidate for the presidency.

Lt. Gen. Albert C. Wedemeyer, presidential adviser on the Far East, was called to testify on China aid following Stassen's appearance as a witness—his second before Bridges' committee in months. The former Minnesota governor testified before in the Senate investigation of commodity speculation.

Secretary of State Marshall, who is to appear before the Senate committee Friday, told a news conference in advance that he is standing firmly for the full amounts asked by the administration.

UN Is Giving Mediator Full Hand In Zion

LAKE SUCCESS, June 10—The United Nations is determined to give Count Folke Bernadotte a free hand in supervising the four-week Palestine truce starting tomorrow.

The Security Council was to meet this afternoon to take official note of unconditional Arab League and Israel acceptances of the 1 a. m. Friday (EST) deadline for the suspension of hostilities.

It is understood that the United States, Britain, France and China will abstain from approving any formal motion by Soviet Russia that the military observer mission of 67 officers now in Palestine be expanded to include Russian representatives.

Ohioans Rap Truman Criticism

Brehm Has Caustic Remarks, Too

WASHINGTON, June 10—President Truman was assailed in the House today as "a nasty little gamin" as Republicans poured abuse upon the chief executive for calling the GOP Congress one of the worst in history.

The epithet was hurled by Rep. Cliff Clevenger, (R), of Bryan, Ohio. The Ohioan, remarked:

"High Tax Harry, like a nasty little gamin, has dipped his hands into the mud and dirt and plastered it all over our new buggy and danced out of the reach of the whip.

"There might well will be some Congress-tanned Missouri jackass hide on the Christmas market come November."

Other Republicans also attacked the President for his comment regarding Congress, made yesterday in Spokane, Wash.

Rep. Lawrence Smith, (R) Wis., told the House that he did not think "we ought to sink to his level."

Rep. Walter Brehm, (R) of Logan, Ohio, said the President was "trying to imitate

Friday Claimed 1st Summer Day

Friday will be the first day of the climatological Summer in Ohio, so the weather bureau predicted a Spring-like day.

Astronomically, Summer does not begin until June 21, the occasion of the Summer solstice. However, the weather bureau figures that Summer should fall within the 90 or so warmest days of the year or June 11 to Sept. 9.

The difference is mostly for the weather bureau records. Anyway, it is impossible to draw a definite line between any two seasons. That is why we have rain as well as snow in the Winter and the reason July 4 isn't always a hot day.

State Outlines Formula To Consolidate 7 Schools In 3-County Area; Enrollment Would Be About 1,400

A tri-county area comprising seven public schools has been shown the way to consolidate, forming one large, practicable school district with a high school of about 300 pupils and an elementary enrollment of approximately 1,100.

The schools involved are Saltcreek and Tarlton of Pickaway County, Adelphi-Harrison of Ross County, and Laurelville-Perry, Saltcreek, Benton and Laurel of Hocking County.

The consolidation, which has been considered by the seven school districts for a quarter century, was indexed by two state department of education experts at the request of the boards of education involved.

The two state officials declared that "it will be necessary for local school officials to make a further study of the many minor phases of the problem. However, it is apparent to all that only through consolidation of territory can a good educational program be worked out."

Consolidation of schools in Ohio is snow-balling. County educators have been warned politely that today's youngsters deserve a better break in education than possibly can be offered in schools where the high school enrollment runs less than 100 students.

This current tri-county consolidation move has little connection, other than in principle, to previous discussions of merger in Pickaway County.

Already county boards of education have held joint meetings where consolidations were outlined. Experts have suggested that Pickaway County should not have more than two high schools, compared to the 11 maintained at present.

Whether countians will heed recommendations already received remains a question only time can answer.

The suggested consolidation in the southeastern corner of Pickaway County modern educators declare, merely is a move to give the area progressive education.

According to the state experts, R. M. Eyman, assistant superintendent of the state department, and A. D. St. Clair, field agent for the state agency, the consolidation would revolve around these recommendations:

1. Form a new district with the seven present schools.
2. Erect a new high school to house all pupils from Grades 9 to 12 with existing high school buildings be maintained as elementary centers. The schools of Saltcreek of Hocking County should be centralized.

After Grades 9 to 12 have been moved from Laurelville and Benton, there will be ample accomodations for all pupils now attending the six one-room schools in Saltcreek of Hocking County.

If the distances the pupils living in the eastern part of Laurel would have to travel prove to be too far in attending the new high school, they could be assigned to Logan city high school.

3. That the best of the present buildings be improved and modernized. If this is done, they will serve their purpose for many years to come.
4. That the educational programs be modernized. The elementary program should be enlarged and strengthened. This will be possible when the high school pupils are removed. The size of the classes can be better regulated since larger groups permit of more flexibility. Then, too, better physical education, health, dramatic, music, etc., programs can be carried on since gymnasium and auditorium facilities will be available.

The report showed that the combined evaluations are.

LAUREL, Md., June 10—One person was reported killed and 32 injured today when the crack Baltimore and Ohio train, the Diplomat, plunged over a steep embankment shortly before noon today.

Names of casualties were not immediately disclosed. The injured were rushed to hospitals in Laurel, Baltimore, and Washington.

The accident occurred at 11:30 a. m. (EST) and a further tragedy was narrowly averted a few minutes later when the B and O's southbound Royal Blue sideswiped several derailed cars.

Railroad officials said that the Diplomat was the northbound Washington to New York, No. 4.

ONE COACH burst into flames as it hurtled over the embankment and passengers smashed through windows and jumped from the blazing car.

Eyewitnesses said that the locomotive and "at least four cars, all crowded," hurtled into a ditch at the foot of the embankment.

The accident occurred mid-

Friday Claimed 1st Summer Day

Friday will be the first day of the climatological Summer in Ohio, so the weather bureau predicted a Spring-like day.

Astronomically, Summer does not begin until June 21, the occasion of the Summer solstice. However, the weather bureau figures that Summer should fall within the 90 or so warmest days of the year or June 11 to Sept. 9.

The difference is mostly for the weather bureau records. Anyway, it is impossible to draw a definite line between any two seasons. That is why we have rain as well as snow in the Winter and the reason July 4 isn't always a hot day.

ONE MAN'S OPINION

"Kissing Jim" will not be a delegate to the national Democratic convention. This will relieve a television crew for active duty elsewhere.

Alabama Democrats decided that a delegate who is apt to remove his shoes and socks while electioneering was not the man to send to Philadelphia where there is the possibility of also losing a shirt.

Anyway civil rights are on the upgrade again. The supreme court has ruled that any one can hire a loudspeaker and jaw at the populace without a local permit. The market for ear muffs has taken a sharp upturn.

State Outlines Formula To Consolidate 7 Schools In 3-County Area; Enrollment Would Be About 1,400

A tri-county area comprising seven public schools has been shown the way to consolidate, forming one large, practicable school district with a high school of about 300 pupils and an elementary enrollment of approximately 1,100.

The schools involved are Saltcreek and Tarlton of Pickaway County, Adelphi-Harrison of Ross County, and Laurelville-Perry, Saltcreek, Benton and Laurel of Hocking County.

The consolidation, which has been considered by the seven school districts for a quarter century, was indexed by two state department of education experts at the request of the boards of education involved.

The two state officials declared that "it will be necessary for local school officials to make a further study of the many minor phases of the problem. However, it is apparent to all that only through consolidation of territory can a good educational program be worked out."

Consolidation of schools in Ohio is snow-balling. County educators have been warned politely that today's youngsters deserve a better break in education than possibly can be offered in schools where the high school enrollment runs less than 100 students.

This current tri-county consolidation move has little connection, other than in principle, to previous discussions of merger in Pickaway County.

Already county boards of education have held joint meetings where consolidations were outlined. Experts have suggested that Pickaway County should not have more than two high schools, compared to the 11 maintained at present.

Whether countians will heed recommendations already received remains a question only time can answer.

The suggested consolidation in the southeastern corner of Pickaway County modern educators declare, merely is a move to give the area progressive education.

According to the state experts, R. M. Eyman, assistant superintendent of the state department, and A. D. St. Clair, field agent for the state agency, the consolidation would revolve around these recommendations:

1. Form a new district with the seven present schools.

2. Erect a new high school to house all pupils from Grades 9 to 12 with existing high school buildings be maintained as elementary centers. The schools of Saltcreek of Hocking County should be centralized.

After Grades 9 to 12 have been moved from Laurelville and Benton, there will be ample accomodations for all pupils now attending the six one-room schools in Saltcreek of Hocking County.

If the distances the pupils living in the eastern part of Laurel would have to travel prove to be too far in attending the new high school, they could be assigned to Logan city high school.

3. That the best of the present buildings be improved and modernized. If this is done, they will serve their purpose for many years to come.

4. That the educational programs be modernized. The elementary program should be enlarged and strengthened. This will be possible when the high school pupils are removed. The size of the classes can be better regulated since larger groups permit of more flexibility. Then, too, better physical education, health, dramatic, music, etc., programs can be carried on since gymnasium and auditorium facilities will be available.

The report showed that the combined evaluations are his predecessors by purging members of Congress."

Rep. John Rankin, (D) Miss., ridiculed the Republicans for taking umbrage at the President's remarks. He commented that "I've never known them to be so insulted" by a President.

Clevenger's tart remark brought Rep. Sam Rayburn, (D) Tex., minority leader, quickly to his feet.

The former speaker told a hushed House that never in his long experience in Congress has he heard a President of the United States assailed with such language.

HE SAID he was "saddened and grieved" that any man would refer to a President in such a manner.

Clevenger attempted to interpose, but Rayburn refused to listen to him.

Another GOP House leader accused the President of using treasury funds to make "a political trip" across the nation.

Rep. Knutson of Minn., chairman of the House ways and means committee, declared that the President's cross-country swing, billed as non-political, is "a political trip, pure and simple."

Mr. Truman, who visited the mammoth Grand Coulee dam project, said at Wenatchee, Wash., yesterday afternoon that he is going to tell the country just where he stands on the subjects of power development, public ownership of utilities, reclamation, conservation and flood prevention.

He told Congress to "quit talking and saying what they are going to do, and do something about it."

The President announced he has called a conference of government and state agencies for tomorrow in Portland, Ore., to see what can be done about preventing future floods in the Columbia river valley.

He assailed Congress for cutting off an emergency fund which he said was intended to be used in such emergencies as the Columbia river flood. He said:

"THIS 80TH Congress wiped out that emergency fund. They did not trust their Democratic President to take care of just such a situation as this.

"Maybe we need a Congress next time that will have a little more confidence in the President, and when things like this come up, we can meet them head-on.

"I am also familiar with the problems in this corner of the world, and I am going to discuss them in detail in Seattle."

Mr. Truman was scheduled to give that talk, his third major speech of his current tour, in Memorial high school auditorium in Seattle at 4:30 p. m. (EST) today.

Cadets Involved In Mishap Here

Two cadets from West Point Academy bowled over several posts on Route 22 near Williamsport Wednesday when the driver of the car fell asleep. Neither of the men was injured in the accident.

The driver of the auto, Charles Crouch of Oakland, Calif., said he and his companion were enroute to Fort Riley, Kans. when he fell asleep and ran into a field.

The car was reported rather badly beaten by the posts, but was repaired later to permit the men to continue their trip.

DEPUTY Premier Constantine Tsaldaris represented the Greek government at the ceremony performed in accordance with the rites of the Greek orthodox church.

The marriage culminates a romance which started when the 26-year-old Michael met Anne last November in London where both attended the wedding of Princess Elizabeth and Prince Philip, Duke of Edinburgh.

Early this year there was a multitude of reports concerning the imminent marriage of the couple. Every reported meeting started guessing as to when the couple actually would be wed.

Anne is a Roman Catholic, but decided to go ahead with the marriage even though it will not be recognized by the church of Rome.

Michael, being Greek orthodox, is head of the church in his country.

Club Official Due Before Jury In Bribe Case

COLUMBUS, June 10—Daniel Diloreto, Ravenna VFW official, is scheduled to appear before the Franklin County grand jury investigating alleged shakedowns for liquor permits today, along with Liquor Director Dale Dunifon and three of his department officials.

County Prosecutor Ralph J. Bartlett ordered Diloreto to appear yesterday. Diloreto told liquor department officials in Cleveland that a man representing himself as a liquor inspector solicited him for a $3,000 bribe. However, Diloreto refused to name the man who called him.

Diloreto is athletic director for the Ravenna VFW. He said he had tried to get a night club permit and was visiting his mother in Miami, Fla., when the phone call came, advising him to take a plane home and show up with the money if he wanted to get the permit.

Diloreto told Cleveland officials he refused to offer the bribe and that he has not received the permit.

Friends may call Friday evening at the Defenbaugh funeral home in Circleville.

2 Wives File Actions Here Against Mates

Accused of gross neglect, Pearl Wesley Valentine is being sued for divorce by his wife, Anna Mae Valentine, in Pickaway County common pleas court.

Her petition claims they were married March 16, 1929, in Circleville and that they are the parents of an 18-year-old son.

Mrs. Valentine is asking the court for possession of the household goods as alimony and to be restored to her maiden name of Anna Mae Lee.

Meanwhile, Dulcey Whaley has brought suit against Joseph R. Whaley for alimony.

The couple was married Feb. 12, 1944, in Queensland, Australia, and are the parents of a four-year-old son, the petition states.

It is claimed he abandoned her in April of 1947 and since that time has failed to make any provision for his wife or child. Beside alimony, Mrs. Whaley is asking for custody of the child.

Industry negotiators promptly submitted a counter-proposal in which the operators agreed to activate the fund if the UMW chief would comply with provisions of the Taft-Hartley Act covering welfare programs and "spend it legally."

Specifically, the mine owners demanded that welfare and pension benefits be paid only to employes of companies contributing the 10-cents-a-ton coal royalty to finance the fund. They said Lewis wanted to make all UMW members eligible.

The operators offered:

1. To continue the existing 10-cent royalty

2. To pay a $100-a-month pension, including Social Security benefits, to miners at the retirement age of 65 years. They estimated the average Social Security payment at $40 a month.

3. Allocate the welfare fund as follows: 50 percent for pensions, 12 percent for $1,000 death benefits, 15 percent for hospitalization and medical care, and 23 percent for distress and hardship.

4. No wage increase.

Asked for comment on the industry's proposal, Lewis replied —"oh, we'll consider it."

Envoy To Vatican Named In Suit

CHICAGO, June 10—A $2 million damage suit filed in federal court here today asks that Myron C. Taylor, special White House envoy to the Vatican, be named father of a 36-year-old Chicago woman.

The plaintiff, Mrs. Eunice Walterman, claims she was born out of wedlock on June 28, 1912, in Lebanon hospital, New York, and is the child of Taylor and Mrs. Margaret Nicholas of New York.

Named co-defendant with Taylor was Joseph A. Bennett, a a close friend of Taylor. The petition said Bennett persistently had attempted to "cover up" the alleged alliance between Taylor and Mrs. Nicholas.

THE CABINET officer's condition, up until a few hours before his death, was not believed critical. However, Mrs. Schwellenbach was notified in the early hours of the morning that her husband's condition had taken a grave turn.

Schwellenbach had been secretary of labor since July 1, 1945. He was appointed by President Truman less than three months after the chief executive entered the White House and succeeded Miss Frances Perkins.

Elected to the Senate from Washington in 1934, Schwellenbach was closely allied with the then Senator Truman on a number of issues fostered by the late President Roosevelt's administration.

Schwellenbach left the Senate to become a United States district judge for the eastern district of Washington in 1940.

He resigned his lifetime appointment on the federal bench to answer Mr. Truman's call to Washington and the cabinet.

Sgt. Neff was born Feb. 17, 1924, in Harrison Township and is survived by his parents and four brothers, Wilbur, Emerson, Clark Jr. and Herbert, all of Ashville.

Ex-Localite Gets Law Degree

Don C. Patterson, now of Columbus, a former Circleville high school teacher, was graduated this week by Franklin university in Columbus with a bachelor of law degree.

The former teacher is a member of Curia, honorary law fraternity, and a graduate of Otterbein college.

He is the son-in-law of Mr. and Mrs. George Fischer of Jackson Township and the father of two daughters.

Athens Thrilled As Mike, Anne Are Married

his uncle, King Paul of Greece, was attired in the uniform of a Romanian general.

DEPUTY Premier Constantine Tsaldaris represented the Greek government at the ceremony performed in accordance with the rites of the Greek orthodox church.

The marriage culminates a romance which started when the 26-year-old Michael met Anne last November in London where both attended the wedding of Princess Elizabeth and Prince Philip, Duke of Edinburgh.

Early this year there was a multitude of reports concerning the imminent marriage of the couple. Every reported meeting started guessing as to when the couple actually would be wed.

Anne is a Roman Catholic, but decided to go ahead with the marriage even though it will not be recognized by the church of Rome.

Michael, being Greek orthodox, is head of the church in his country.

Club Official Due Before Jury In Bribe Case

COLUMBUS, June 10—Daniel Diloreto, Ravenna VFW official, is scheduled to appear before the Franklin County grand jury investigating alleged shakedowns for liquor permits today, along with Liquor Director Dale Dunifon and three of his department officials.

County Prosecutor Ralph J. Bartlett ordered Diloreto to appear yesterday. Diloreto told liquor department officials in Cleveland that a man representing himself as a liquor inspector solicited him for a $3,000 bribe. However, Diloreto refused to name the man who called him.

Diloreto is athletic director for the Ravenna VFW. He said he had tried to get a night club permit and was visiting his mother in Miami, Fla., when the phone call came, advising him to take a plane home and show up with the money if he wanted to get the permit.

Diloreto told Cleveland officials he refused to offer the bribe and that he has not received the permit.

LaSalle was the first explorer to follow the Mississippi river to its mouth.

2 Wives File Actions Here Against Mates

Accused of gross neglect, Pearl Wesley Valentine is being sued for divorce by his wife, Anna Mae Valentine, in Pickaway County common pleas court.

Her petition claims they were married March 16, 1929, in Circleville and that they are the parents of an 18-year-old son.

Mrs. Valentine is asking the court for possession of the household goods as alimony and to be restored to her maiden name of Anna Mae Lee.

Meanwhile, Dulcey Whaley has brought suit against Joseph R. Whaley for alimony.

The couple was married Feb. 12, 1944, in Queensland, Australia, and are the parents of a four-year-old son, the petition states.

It is claimed he abandoned her in April of 1947 and since that time has failed to make any provision for his wife or child. Beside alimony, Mrs. Whaley is asking for custody of the child.

CIO Plans Appeal

CINCINNATI, June 10—An appeal to the higher courts was expected today following Federal Judge John H. Druffel's dismissal of the $26,325,000 overtime pay suit filed by CIO workers against the Wright Aeronautical Corp. at Lockland.

Coal Picture Has Solon Jittery

lion UMW welfare fund into operation on his terms.

Industry negotiators promptly submitted a counter-proposal in which the operators agreed to activate the fund if the UMW chief would comply with provisions of the Taft-Hartley Act covering welfare programs and "spend it legally."

Specifically, the mine owners demanded that welfare and pension benefits be paid only to employes of companies contributing the 10-cents-a-ton coal royalty to finance the fund. They said Lewis wanted to make all UMW members eligible.

The operators offered:

1. To continue the existing 10-cent royalty

2. To pay a $100-a-month pension, including Social Security benefits, to miners at the retirement age of 65 years. They estimated the average Social Security payment at $40 a month.

3. Allocate the welfare fund as follows: 50 percent for pensions, 12 percent for $1,000 death benefits, 15 percent for hospitalization and medical care, and 23 percent for distress and hardship.

4. No wage increase.

Asked for comment on the industry's proposal, Lewis replied —"oh, we'll consider it."

Envoy To Vatican Named In Suit

CHICAGO, June 10—A $2 million damage suit filed in federal court here today asks that Myron C. Taylor, special White House envoy to the Vatican, be named father of a 36-year-old Chicago woman.

The plaintiff, Mrs. Eunice Walterman, claims she was born out of wedlock on June 28, 1912, in Lebanon hospital, New York, and is the child of Taylor and Mrs. Margaret Nicholas of New York.

Named co-defendant with Taylor was Joseph A. Bennett, a a close friend of Taylor. The petition said Bennett persistently had attempted to "cover up" the alleged affiance between Taylor and Mrs. Nicholas.

way between the Laurel race track and the B and O station.

The Royal Blue sideswiped several of the wrecked cars as it moved slowly along an adjacent track but damage was slight and Royal Blue passengers were uninjured.

State police were told that a rail on the track the Diplomat was traversing became dislodged after the locomotive and several cars had passed over it.

With a terrific wrench, the train swerved from the rails and catapulted over the embankment.

Runaway Pair Halted By Cops

Two 15 year-old runaways from Elyria were held by Circleville authorities Thursday, awaiting arrival of their parents to take them back home.

The runaways were taken into custody at 11 p. m. Wednesday by Officer Ralph Leist, who noticed the lads alighting from an auto with a barracks bag in tow.

great senator, a great judge, and a great secretary of labor."

THE CABINET officer's condition, up until a few hours before his death, was not believed critical. However, Mrs. Schwellenbach was notified in the early hours of the morning that her husband's condition had taken a grave turn.

Schwellenbach had been secretary of labor since July 1, 1945. He was appointed by President Truman less than three months after the chief executive entered the White House and succeeded Miss Frances Perkins.

Elected to the Senate from Washington in 1934, Schwellenbach was closely allied with the then Senator Truman on a number of issues fostered by the late President Roosevelt's administration.

Schwellenbach left the Senate to become a United States district judge for the eastern district of Washington in 1940.

He resigned his lifetime appointment on the federal bench to answer Mr. Truman's call to Washington and the cabinet.

MAN ON STREET HAS ANSWER

Little Guys Not Fooled By Soviet 'Peace Bid'

WASHINGTON, June 10—The thinking ability of the so-called man-on-the-street seems to catch an awful lot of smart-aleck kicking around nowdays.

High-powered books have been written by certain parties who pass themselves off as intellectuals, quote-un-quote, showing all the reasons why this much-discussed man always is a sucker for propaganda.

High-priced lecturers go to great length to show how average people must be led down the proper pathways of political education and the like.

The main media of expression—newspapers, magazines, and books—constantly are being criticized as horrible evils because they continue to propagandize this poor chump who can't think for himself.

Then, all of a sudden, the poor chump up and does it—and quite often he does it by doping out a really tough one which has all the brainy boys still in a tizzy.

THAT'S THE way it was the recent Russian so-called "peace bid." While all the big wheels in Washington (and elsewhere, apparently) were spinning telephone dials like crazy, trying to find somebody who knew something about what it meant, the man-on-the-street figured it out, and went quietly on about his business.

At the time, it was the big news of the day and all the big shots were pretty excited about it.

Of course, the administrative and legislative leaders here and in Europe sometimes differed as to exactly what it meant, but they all seemed to agree that it was mighty, mighty important—and probably would develop into more important news in succeeding days.

But curiously, seven New York and Washington newspapers carried not a single line about the "peace bid"—except one editorial page cartoon, and one short item of two paragraphs reporting some delayed Russian reaction to U. S. reaction to their initial reaction, etc. etc.

Now, in contrast to the excitement among the brainy boys, these were the two chief reactions among the many men-on-the-street:

1—Fine, if it's true, but it's probably a Russian trick to pretend like they're being peaceful by agreeing to a "peace" conference at which they won't agree to anything. Nothing to get excited about.

2—Fine, if it's true, but it probably just means the Russians are trying to slow down our rearmament legislation by pulling in their horns for the moment. It's good news because it may mean that they aren't ready to fight just yet, but still nothing to get excited about.

There were variations to those two themes, of course, but that's how the majority went. Taxi-Driver Richard Reid, a Marine combat veteran, summed up the first point of view thusly:

"IT WOULD be fine, of course, but from what we've seen of the Russians, the only things ever are settled at such conferences is their way. Sounds to me like they're just trying to convince somebody that they're really more peaceable than us—without actually doing anything about it. Or maybe they figure most Americans want peace badly enough that Russia could write her own terms at such a conference."

He didn't figure America would be "sucked in" by such a trick, so he didn't think the news of the Russian announcement amounted to much.

Epitomizing the second point of view was Barber Thomas Butler who has been holding forth in the House of Representatives tonsorial emporium for some 20 years.

"If it means anything," he said, "it probably means they've gotten a little worried about our draft bills and the plan to build a big Air Force.

"Probably they figure if they talk like peaceful people now, we'll relax and drop all that business. But if we go ahead and rearm—build a big Army and Navy and Air Force—they'll do more than talk peace. They'll start acting peacefully!"

But in any case, he didn't think this conference talk amounted to much.

Forty-eight hours later, everybody pretty much agreed. The story vanished from the front pages and the newscasts, largely labeled either a trick or a Russian feint which failed to fool the democracies.

Right or wrong, that's what the man-on-the-street figured from the first!

Cleveland Shuns Payroll Tax In Quest For Funds

CLEVELAND, June 10—A municipal income tax to solve Cleveland's financial problems was ruled out as the immediate solution today.

Mayor Thomas A. Burke stated that he plans to seek a city charter amendment which would enable the city to impose an 11-mill operating levy that would increase income about $1.5 million annually.

Burke added that a city payroll tax might be levied if other remedies fail to solve the problems. He indicated, however, that this course of action would not have to be taken at least until mid-1949. The mayor said:

"I also am exploring the possibility of trying to get the federal government to drop its 20 percent amusement tax, just as Ohio last year abandoned its three percent admission tax, so that our financially distressed cities may use this field for income at the same time taxpayers are given some relief from their present crushing burden."

Workers Return After Company Raps Knuckles

CANTON, June 10—Tool and die makers returned to their jobs at the Hoover Co. in suburban North Canton today following a two-day "disciplinary" layoff.

The employes, members of the CIO-United Electrical Workers union, staged a production stoppage last Friday and Monday. The company retaliated by imposing the layoff.

Lynn J. Plastow, spokesman for the 125 workers, said a meeting with management would be sought "to straighten out the wage issue." The tool and die workers asked a 10-cents hourly pay raise and walked out when the company turned down the demand.

The Hoover firm, which employs 2,200 has refused to recognize the union since May 1 when a contract expired. The company has insisted that union officials comply with the non-Communist provisions of the Taft-Hartley law.

What's the Hottest News in Cars since the Self-Starter?

FOR the answer to that, just ask any man who drives a Dynaflow Buick.

He'll tell you, you haven't seen anything yet — until you slip behind a Dynaflow wheel and see for yourself what this new drive does.

It isn't merely that it's easy — though all you do in normal driving is set a lever, press the gas treadle, and steer.

It isn't merely the "stunts" you can pull, such as coming to a dead stop on a steep hill, then moving smoothly away, just by the way you manage the gas treadle.

The important thing is that Dynaflow Drive* marks a basic change in the way power is delivered from the engine to the rear wheels.

The idea of passing through a series of gears in fixed stages, either manually or by mechanical means, is gone entirely.

Instead, spinning oil is so cunningly directed and controlled in the Dynaflow unit that it instantly shapes engine power to fit any normal driving need.

When you start, it steps up engine "torque" like a low gear to give you swift, surging getaway.

When you accelerate or climb, it fits the pull of the engine to that particular job.

When you cruise on the level open road, it delivers power with a flowing smoothness that is far silkier than the normal high.

You have manual control of direction simply by moving a lever. You have reserve braking power instantly at your command — and extra power for emergency pulls.

But there is never any clutch-work — there is no clutch-pedal. And never any gearshifting in the old sense—your power plant does what the forward gears used to do.

Right now, of course, Dynaflow Drive is available only on Buick ROADMASTER models.

Go find out about it, at the nearest Buick dealer — and be ready to put your order in, whether or not you have a car to trade.

Optional at extra cost on Roadmaster models only.*

MAN ON STREET HAS ANSWER

Little Guys Not Fooled By Soviet 'Peace Bid'

WASHINGTON, June 10—The thinking ability of the so-called man-on-the-street seems to catch an awful lot of smart-aleck kicking around nowdays.

High-powered books have been written by certain parties who pass themselves off as intellectuals, quote-unquote, showing all the reasons why this much-discussed man always is a sucker for propaganda.

High-priced lecturers go to great length to show how average people must be led down the proper pathways of political education and the like.

The main media of expression—newspapers, magazines, and books—constantly are being criticized as horrible evils because they continue to propagandize this poor chump who can't think for himself.

Then, all of a sudden, the poor chump up and does it—and quite often he does it by doping out a really tough one which has all the brainy boys still in a tizzy.

THAT'S THE way it was the recent Russian so-called "peace bid." While all the big wheels in Washington (and elsewhere, apparently) were spinning telephone dials like crazy, trying to find somebody who knew something about what it meant, the man-on-the-street figured it out, and went quietly on about his business.

At the time, it was the big news of the day and all the big shots were pretty excited about it.

Of course, the administrative and legislative leaders here and in Europe sometimes differed as to exactly what it meant, but they all seemed to agree that it was mighty, mighty important—and probably would develop into more important news in succeeding days.

But curiously, seven New York and Washington newspapers carried not a single line about the "peace bid"—except one editorial page cartoon, and one short item of two paragraphs reporting some delayed Russian reaction to U. S. reaction to their initial reaction, etc. etc.

Now, in contrast to the excitement among the brainy boys, these were the two chief reactions among the many men-on-the-street:

1—Fine, if it's true, but it's probably a Russian trick to pretend like they're being peaceful by agreeing to a "peace" conference at which they won't agree to anything. Nothing to get excited about.

2—Fine, if it's true, but it probably just means the Russians are trying to slow down our rearmament legislation by pulling in their horns for the moment. It's good news because it may mean that they aren't ready to fight just yet, but still nothing to get excited about.

There were variations to those two themes, of course, but that's how the majority went. Taxi-Driver Richard Reid, a Marine combat veteran, summed up the first point of view thusly:

"IT WOULD be fine, of course, but from what we've seen of the Russians, the only things ever are settled at such conferences is their way. Sounds to me like they're just trying to convince somebody that they're really more peaceable than us—without actually doing anything about it. Or maybe they figure most Americans want peace badly enough that Russia could write her own terms at such a conference."

He didn't figure America would be "sucked in" by such a trick, so he didn't think the news of the Russian announcement amounted to much.

Epitomizing the second point of view was Barber Thomas Butler who has been holding forth in the House of Representatives tonsorial emporium for some 20 years.

"If it means anything," he said, "it probably means they've gotten a little worried about our draft bills and the plan to build a big Air Force.

"Probably they figure if they talk like peaceful people now, we'll relax and drop all that business. But if we go ahead and rearm—build a big Army and Navy and Air Force—they'll do more than talk peace. They'll start acting peacefully!"

But in any case, he didn't think this conference talk amounted to much.

Forty-eight hours later, everybody pretty much agreed. The story vanished from the front pages and the newscasts, largely labeled either a trick or a Russian feint which failed to fool the democracies.

Right or wrong, that's what the man-on-the-street figured from the first!

Cleveland Shuns Payroll Tax In Quest For Funds

CLEVELAND, June 10—A municipal income tax to solve Cleveland's financial problems was ruled out as the immediate solution today.

Mayor Thomas A. Burke stated that he plans to seek a city charter amendment which would enable the city to impose an 11-mill operating levy that would increase income about $1.5 million annually.

Burke added that a city payroll tax might be levied if other remedies fail to solve the problems. He indicated, however, that this course of action would not have to be taken at least until mid-1949. The mayor said:

"I also am exploring the possibility of trying to get the federal government to drop its 20 percent amusement tax, just as Ohio last year abandoned its three percent admission tax, so that our financially distressed cities may use this field for income at the same time taxpayers are given some relief from their present crushing burden."

7 Countians To Attend Ohio Parley

Demonstration Council Booked

At least seven representatives from Pickaway County will attend the Ohio Home Demonstration Council meeting to be held next Tuesday and Wednesday on the Ohio State university campus.

To attend from here are Miss Genevieve Alley, county home demonstration agent; Mrs. J. B. Stevenson, Wayne Township, district president of home demonstration council; Mrs. C. V. Neal, Darby Township, vice-president of the county council.

Also planning to attend are Mrs. Clarence Maxson and Mrs. Wayne Luckhart of Saltcreek Township; Mrs. Clyde Michel and daughter, Lucille of Darby Township.

More than 400 rural homemakers, 4-H Club girls and home demonstration leaders throughout the state are expected to participate in the two-day conference.

THEME OF this year's meeting is "Harmony in the Home—Order in the Nation—Peace in the World."

Four Ohio State university staff members will be among the principal speakers on the program. They are Dr. Walter L. Dorn of the history department; Dr. Maurice Newburger, Ohio Bureau of juvenile research; Helen Strow, former overseas club director for the American Red Cross; and Mrs. Litta Roberson, Ohio farm bureau director of home and community relations.

The sense of smell is very acute in an elephant, and so is his sense of hearing.

Robert Rector, Pickaway Native, Gets New York Livestock Post

Robert E. Rector, pioneer in the field of lamb pooling and a native of Pickaway County, has joined the staff of the Empire Livestock Cooperative in Ithaca, N. Y.

There he is to supervise sheep, lamb and calf operations at four of Empire's livestock markets in Argyle, Bath, Greene and Gouverneur.

ROBERT RECTOR

Prior to going to Empire June 1, Rector was employed for 17 years by the Producer's Livestock Cooperative Association of Columbus, where he helped develop the lamb pooling system, guiding it to prominence in this state's livestock marketing economy.

"Empire is very fortunate in securing the services of Rector," declared R. V. Hemming, general manager of the Ithaca cooperative. He added:

"HIS DECISION to lend his services to the infant Empire organization will greatly benefit both livestock producers and buyers who patronize Empire markets."

Rector started his career with the Pittsburgh Producers Livestock Cooperative Association. While working as a lamb and calf salesman for the Producer's Livestock Cooperative Association in Columbus, he operated lamb pools at London, Marysville and Ashley, where he conducted some 15 pools at each outlet from mid-July through March.

"Rector's farm and livestock background will be utilized in surveying the sheep growing areas of New York state to see what can be done to bring about an increase in the production of sheep and lambs, and to recommend new marketing techniques and facilities to encourage increased livestock production," according to Hemming.

Rector is married and has two children.

MANY NEVER SUSPECT CAUSE OF BACKACHES

This Old Treatment Often Brings Happy Relief

When disorder of kidney function permits poisonous matter to remain in your blood, it may cause nagging backache, rheumatic pains, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness. Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning sometimes shows there is something wrong with your kidneys or bladder.

Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, a stimulant diuretic, used successfully by millions for over 50 years. Doan's give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from your blood. Get Doan's Pills.

ITCH (Scabies) is highly contagious and will continue for life if not stopped. Its sole cause is the itch-mite which is immune to ordinary treatment. EXSORA kills the itch-mite almost instantly. Only three days EXSORA treatment is required. At all GALLAHER DRUG STORES.

7 Countians To Attend Ohio Parley

Demonstration Council Booked

At least seven representatives from Pickaway County will attend the Ohio Home Demonstration Council meeting to be held next Tuesday and Wednesday on the Ohio State university campus.

To attend from here are Miss Genevieve Alley, county home demonstration agent; Mrs. J. B. Stevenson, Wayne Township, district president of home demonstration council; Mrs. C. V. Neal, Darby Township, vice-president of the county council.

Also planning to attend are Mrs. Clarence Maxson and Mrs. Wayne Luckhart of Saltcreek Township; Mrs. Clyde Michel and daughter, Lucille of Darby Township.

More than 400 rural homemakers, 4-H Club girls and home demonstration leaders throughout the state are expected to participate in the two-day conference.

THEME OF this year's meeting is "Harmony in the Home—Order in the Nation—Peace in the World."

Four Ohio State university staff members will be among the principal speakers on the program. They are Dr. Walter L. Dorn of the history department; Dr. Maurice Newburger, Ohio Bureau of juvenile research; Helen Strow, former overseas club director for the American Red Cross; and Mrs. Litta Roberson, Ohio farm bureau director of home and community relations.

The sense of smell is very acute in an elephant, and so is his sense of hearing.

Robert Rector, Pickaway Native, Gets New York Livestock Post

Robert E. Rector, pioneer in the field of lamb pooling and a native of Pickaway County, has joined the staff of the Empire Livestock Cooperative in Ithaca, N. Y.

There he is to supervise sheep, lamb and calf operations at four of Empire's livestock markets in Argyle, Bath, Greene and Gouverneur.

Prior to going to Empire June 1, Rector was employed for 17 years by the Producer's Livestock Cooperative Association of Columbus, where he helped develop the lamb pooling system, guiding it to prominence in this state's livestock marketing economy.

"Empire is very fortunate in securing the services of Rector," declared R. V. Hemming, general manager of the Ithaca cooperative. He added:

"HIS DECISION to lend his services to the infant Empire organization will greatly benefit both livestock producers and buyers who patronize Empire markets."

Rector started his career with the Pittsburgh Producers Livestock Cooperative Association. While working as a lamb and calf salesman for the Producer's Livestock Cooperative Association in Columbus, he operated lamb pools at London, Marysville and Ashley, where he conducted some 15 pools at each outlet from mid-July through March.

"Rector's farm and livestock background will be utilized in surveying the sheep growing areas of New York state to see what can be done to bring about an increase in the production of sheep and lambs, and to recommend new marketing techniques and facilities to encourage increased livestock production," according to Hemming.

Rector is married and has two children.

IT PAYS TO CLEAN UP

DO LARGE manufacturing plants want to make friends? One way, which they should in all seriousness adopt, is to clean up their industrial waste, instead of dumping it into streams and polluting water supplies and vacation spots. This advice does not come from an outsider, but from Dr. Mark E. Putnam, vice president of the Dow Chemical Co., Midland, Mich., addressing the American Institute of Chemical Engineers.

"It is an inescapable conclusion" says Dr. Putnam, "that industry damages water or renders it less fit for use by other members of the public." It should be unnecessary for factories needing water to free it from pollution first. Certainly it should not be necessary for households to use polluted water.

No worse advertisement for a business can be imagined than to see a stream yellow with filth, flowing through a forested recreation spot, and to learn that this is the work of the Blank Company, which has not taken the trouble to process its waste. It is sure to provoke antagonism on the part of sportsmen's organizations, and resentment from the unorganized public.

Also many companies which undertook to dispose of their own wastes have discovered in the process useful by-products decidedly worth salvaging.

Gentlemen who own industrial plants, it pays to clean up your own messes.

CLAIMING THE MOON

TWO Pennsylvanians must think that the housing shortage is due to a lack of building sites. Robert D. Eaton and Charles W. Honhold of Sewickley have just filed claims for the moon, with the Bureau of Land Management at Washington. The Bureau has denied the claims, one reason being that, following the rule of the federal homestead laws, the applicant must first inspect the area in person and show that he is familiar with the land and its surroundings. This the two Pennsylvanians might find it hard to establish.

There is another, even more valid reason for refusing the claim. The United States has not as yet filed any claim to the moon. To do so might not be much worse than claiming the icebound Antarctic, which several nations are trying to do. Should we be forehanded, and get our order in first?

Presidential candidates may pretend not to be working hard for the nomination, but it is noticeable that, when the convention is over, they usually go away for a long rest.

George E. Sokolsky's

These Days

I have indicated in two articles that I did not believe that the Collier's Prize presented to Senator Barkley was fair. In his letter to Washington newsmen, commentators, and columnists requesting them to express a preference, James C. Derieux, representing Collier's, wrote:

"Mr. Eric Johnston, chairman, other members of Collier's Congressional Awards Committee, and the editors of Collier's will be grateful to you for the names of three senators and three representatives who, in your opinion, rendered the most distinguished services to our country during the calendar year 1947. The committee is now in process of selecting the Senator and the Representative who will receive the 1947 awards, and your opinion, which will be held in confidence, will be helpful and respected. If you can participate in this poll, please list the names in the order of your preference, and give reasons for your selections."

It is not said in this letter or in the letter to newspaper editors that the polls would be given no consideration. Yet, William L. Chenery, publisher of Collier's, makes the point:

"As one who answers questions to those taking many kinds of polls, I do not expect the polls to do more than indicate a state of public opinion. Certainly the American people do not take the Gallup polls or the Roper polls as substitutes for the regular elections. I see no reason for the Collier's Congressional Awards Committee, which was selected to represent different important groups, to be bound by any of the polls taken for the purposes of providing information."

I agree with Chenery. Polls are not substitutes for elections nor have I ever discovered that they have any value at all except to increase confusion. But if, as Chenery indicates, the polls are not a substitute for elections, why did he hold these polls?

There is a further point about all this. The committee, appointed by Collier's, did not ask for the polls. They were given to the committee by Collier's representative, who told them that the polls, as well as other data, were available to the committee but they were not bound to give them any consideration. No similar statement was made to those who were polled. They must have assumed that their preferences would be given every consideration, or why were they bothered?

Three ballots were taken among the committee. Senator Vandenberg was excluded because he had been given the prize the year before; Senator Taft was excluded because he was an active candidate for the presidency. My impression is that the committee's choice fell among Senators Barkley, Byrd and Ives.

It would be interesting to know on what data they found Barkley's 1947 record preferable to that of Byrd or Ives. Were it 1945 or 1946, the result might be understandable, but why in 1947? The suggestion that Barkley showed wonderful ability in handling the two party systems is so far-fetched that not one member of this committee could, I am sure, sustain it by facts. The answer to the whole business seems to be that this committee did not want to give Taft the favorable publicity that publication of the polls would produce.

"The Authority on Authorities"

FIND PARTICULAR CARDS

JUST BECAUSE your pair is equipped with the Blackwood convention—that is no reason why you have to use it always when you are probing for a possible slam, either small or grand. There are cases in which your failure to use it gives your partner much clearer information than if it were not in your equipment at all. If you cue-bid a couple of suits in addition to the one previously agreed upon as the trump, you are of course showing a blank in the other, the aces of those two, and are asking him to go all the way if he has the kings in both of them.

Three of the four North-South pairs in the individual championship of New York's Union League Club reached that same contract, all of them making it. If the grand slam had been in the cards, however, this pair would have had the best chance to reach it, in view of the methods used by South, Harold Colvin, since he had a keen partner in the North who could read his purpose—six-foot-four Gilbert P. Inglis.

The two had just exchanged bidding views, deciding to employ the Blackwood convention. So, when South cue-bid his diamonds instead of bidding 4-No Trumps, Mr. Inglis felt sure South had a void suit. After he showed his own one ace with 5-Hearts, his partner's 6-Clubs told him the whole story. He knew a fine player like Mr. Colvin would not do that except with a very logical purpose, especially since the Blackwood had been laid on the shelf.

"That bidding positively shows a heart blank, the aces of both minors and plenty of top honor strength in spades," he reflected. "He is therefore asking me if I have the kings of both diamonds and clubs. If I had held them both, I would have bid 7-Spades. Having neither, I bid only the small slam." He made it after the spade lead, and could have against any lead the opponents could have chosen, even a diamond.

Pages From the Diary of An Antiquated Reporter:

Up to find the barometer heading upward again after a million dollar rain. Countryside smiling again and beautiful without that distraught look of just a few days ago. Stood on the hill and looked northward toward the ville wondering just how long we will wait before letting out the girdle of corporate limits that already is too small for us. The time can not be far away and our city fathers should be scanning the future and making plans. Also the planning commission should be preparing recommendations. No breeze at all yet an old kleenex taking off and making altitude. Landed in a tree and then did note a sparrow in possession. Suppose it caught cold in that rain? And high in the cottonwood did note a new bird nest. Nothing tidy about it, but huge. Looks like a forkful of old hay. What kind of a bird is that? Too big for anything I have seen around.

There goes George Morris, the Circleville high school pitcher, who on June 14 is to work out before Cincinnati Reds experts. May be his big chance. Came as a result of the interest of Fred Clark. Met George Gearhart and worried him no end because I failed to ask how he got the great lump on his forehead. Very worried because I kept looking at it and talking about other matters. Anyway, I had heard about a flying piece of wood as he chopped. And it was more fun to let him wonder why an inquisitive newsman asked no questions when everyone else had.

Here and there talk about the loss of the services of Charles Zaenglein after 31 years as an instructor in our schools. And a great loss it is. In the minds of most folk the most valuable unit in the system. He was stern and just and all the kids respected him and learned under him. His patience with modern child psychology was limited. More of the "spare the rod and spoil the child" thinkers. You have seen his musicians in the CHS bands and know what he accomplished. Youths in his other classes accomplished as much. And if those kids and the kids of the last 31 years do not band together in some sort of testimonial for such a good influence within the community they are an ungrateful lot. And don't just talk about it. Do it!

Harold Dresbach has a dachshund that most folk have seen. Named Hudepohl. Smart dog. Despises hillbilly music and lets the world know of his dislike when it sneaks in on the Dresbach radio. Never thought my mind would run on a level with that of a dog, but it does. Nice going Hudy.

Out and around the ville, meeting up with Earl Smith and being his guest at coffee. Laughed with John Boggs in a discussion of what Cincinnati thinks may be baseball and passed the time of day with Joe and Bob Adkins. Rode through the north end to note great progress on new houses under construction. Waved to Wallace Crist who was being taken for a walk by his grandson and to Bud Hardin who was inspecting his minnow pond. Wondered just how many new houses this town could use. It's a guess, but my figure is at least 20. Every day in the office come requests, many of them from Columbus and elsewhere, relative to availability of living quarters. And the price at which residences have been selling is further proof of a great shortage.

Home in the cool of the afternoon to mow the lawn and inspect the plants, many of which are in bloom. Sufficient proof that they are none of my doing. Then dinner and a quiet evening trying to catch up on neglected reading.

SYNOPSIS

When his beloved grandfather died, Paul Andrew Delacourt, as the last of his family, should have inherited a vast fortune, but instead he received a mere five thousand dollars. His grandfather, aware of Paul's secret desire to make his own way in the world, left his millions to charity. After promising to keep in touch with Bigelow, the family butler who had been his confidant since childhood, Paul sets forth, vowing to settle down wherever his fifteenth hitch-hike took him. Thus he came to the small New England town of Branfield, and as Andrew Paulson, architect, secured lodgings at the modest home of Mrs. Potts, who with her teenage daughter Gloria, lived on the outskirts of town. Later, while lunching at The Lodge, Branfield's only hotel, he came to the aid of attractive Joan McClure when she turned her ankle. From her employer, Alec Priest, owner of the lumberyard, he learned that Louis Baron, hard-driving contractor, might have need of an architect. Baron, however, proved so insulting that the interview ended in a fight. Andrew, discouraged about finding employment, discussed the idea of buying a farm with Mrs. Potts and Bigelow, who had arrived that afternoon with Andrew's roadster. Mrs. Potts eyed the expensive looking car suspiciously, but Andrew explained he had purchased it second-hand, and the following day drove her and Gloria to church in it. Joan and her mother were there and agreed to be his guests at the Family Supper the church was having the next week. When they arrived home Mrs. Potts insisted on "Mr." Bigelow and Andrew staying for dinner.

CHAPTER ELEVEN

BIGELOW stood for a moment, his hands behind his back, to stare at a steel engraving on the wall. It was called "Happy Days" and depicted a shepherd girl with shawled head and bare feet, seated on a hillside, with her knitting in her lap, and a far-away look in her eyes. A couple of bulging sheep stood woodenly in the background. It was so sentimental that it made Bigelow smile.

"Isn't that the corniest thing you ever saw?" Gloria asked in her muted voice. "Ma says she keeps it because she liked it when she was a kid, but I say do we have to hang it in the parlor, of all places?"

She ambled around the room in awkward embarrassment, moving the books on the side table and almost knocking over a pot of ferns. Andrew took pity on her. "Shall we sit down? I don't suppose your mother will let us help her."

"Oh, my, no!" Gloria was horrified at the idea of a man doing anything in her mother's kitchen. "Ma says there isn't a man born who knows a thing about cooking. Why, even these chefs you see in the movies sometimes—she says that's all make-believe. She never heard of a man who didn't think he could cook if he had the chance, but just let them have it, she says, and they'll turn out some horrible mess you can't eat, and leave the place looking like a pig-sty."

Andrew had a momentary memory of Raoul, the chef at his grandfather's home; of Raoul's dishes, and spotless domain, and deliberately refrained from looking at Bigelow. He knew, without seeing him, that Bigelow was having the same thought. Gloria continued, unaware of the inner amusement of her audience. "They had a man cook at the Lodge once—oh, years ago, when Jed's ma was running it—and he got drunk and beat up old Lem, only of course he wasn't so old then, and everybody said it was a pip of a fight, and simply ruined the range, and I don't know what!"

She paused, out of breath. "Gloria," her mother's voice sounded from the kitchen, "can't you give the men a chance to say something once in a while? Maybe you'd better come here and finish setting the table." Gloria left, reluctantly.

The dining room table was decorated with a pot of ivy in the middle, which had been swathed in a violent shade of pink crepe paper. Andrew thought he recognized Gloria's touch. The cloth was cotton, but it was snowy and spread without a wrinkle, and the silverware was arranged with geometrical precision.

Andrew and his friend managed to make conversation easily enough at the meal, and once in a while Mrs. Potts was lured into offering some pungent comment. But for the most part she served and ate and listened, and all the while her eyes were studying the two men. Andrew hoped that Biggy didn't mind this obvious scrutiny. He was used to it from his breakfasts in the Potts menage and he knew, without being told, that it was his table manners which were being studied. If he had not had an innate poise, it might have bothered him.

The cooking, he had to admit, was excellent. There was a succulent roast loin of pork, fluffy mashed potatoes, home-canned succotash, home-made pickles and applesauce. And for dessert a huge, golden brown, steaming hot apple pie and coffee. Bigelow complimented Mrs. Potts on her cooking, and she was very pleased, recognizing the sincerity of his praise.

"I always was a good cook," she said modestly, "without half trying. I got it from watching my own mother, I guess. But in those days—my, what you had to cook with! Now it's always scrimp and makeshift, and wonder if you can get half the necessary ingredients. But I do what I can—I always did say I'd rather live without the fol-de-rols and have good food on my table!"

Andrew suddenly remembered his message from Mrs. Woodford and passed it on. "I know now what she was talking about," he said, eating the last bite of his pie and regretfully refusing another. "I'm glad I asked the McClures to the Family Supper, if this is the sort of thing we're going to have."

Mrs. Potts stared at him in astonishment. "You—asked the McClures?" she echoed. "And they—they accepted?"

"Both of them," Andrew told her, wondering why she seemed so surprised.

She shook her head in wonderment. "Well, I declare! I'm not surprised at Mrs. McClure, of course. She's a friendly little soul, in spite of having been married to that man. But Joan! Did she really say she would?"

"Why, yes, she accepted for herself and her mother right away."

Mrs. Potts couldn't get over it. "Of course, you do have a way with you," she murmured, "and you did help her the other day. But even so, I'd have thought..." She never did say what she would have thought, and Andrew was left in the dark.

He took Bigelow to the afternoon train, bade him a reluctant farewell, and then turned the cream-colored convertible toward East Branfield again. A glance at the gas gauge told him that he had better fill up his tank, and he decided to try the filling station at the foot of the hill. It was a rather untidy-looking place, but the proprietor had always sung out a cheery greeting when Andrew was walking back and forth to town for his meals. A weather-beaten sign proclaimed that the owner was "E. Merwell, Prop."

He came out of his little shack when Andrew drove up. "My, my," he exclaimed, "what did you do—rob the bank?" He walked around the big car admiringly. "Looks just like new," he commented, "but I bet you won't keep it that way. Pride goes before a side-swipe."

Andrew laughed. "Fill her up," he said, and moved toward the air-hose purposefully. A mottled shape sprang out at him from behind a stack of tires, and he jerked back instinctively. The tortoise-shell cat stood perfectly still in his path, staring at him with enigmatic yellow eyes and a slowly switching tail-tip.

"Joe, you come over here," the gas station proprietor called, and the cat moved to one side. Andrew stooped down to test his tires and turned his head to look up.

"Joe's an unusual name for a cat," he said.

"Unusual cat," E. Merwell, Prop. stated. Then, relenting, he added, "Short for Joe Stalin. He's full of communistic ideas, and he's a real dictator, to boot."

Andrew chuckled. He liked this man with his dry humor and decided to ask him a few questions, feeling that he would get truthful answers. Without looking up, he said, "By the way, do you know of any farms for sale around here?"

His head was bent and so he did not see the speculative glance which Merwell cast at the expensive car, and Andrew's well-tailored clothes. "Summer place?" he asked.

"Oh, no, I'd be there all year round. A place I could work myself."

"What's the matter, you got to stick yourself out in the country for your health?" The proprietor hooked the hose to the side of the pump, and moved to give the windshield a perfunctory swab.

"Nothing of the sort. I intend to settle here, and I want a place that will be small enough to work, and big enough to support me."

The man laughed. "Brother, men have been lookin' for a place like that since Adam!" He paused a moment, then asked incredulously, "You a farmer?"

"Not yet." Andrew thought, with some amusement, If I stay here I'll soon be as laconic as the natives.

"Well," Merwell informed him, as Andrew got back into the car, and handed him a bill, "I'll keep you in mind. If I hear of any wonder-farm that's small enough for one man to work, and good enough to support him, I'll sure let you know—if I don't cop it myself."

Andrew chuckled. As he started to drive out of the station, he suddenly braked, and called back over his shoulder. "Oh, I forgot! It's got to be cheap, too!"

IT PAYS TO CLEAN UP

DO LARGE manufacturing plants want to make friends? One way, which they should in all seriousness adopt, is to clean up their industrial waste, instead of dumping it into streams and polluting water supplies and vacation spots. This advice does not come from an outsider, but from Dr. Mark E. Putnam, vice president of the Dow Chemical Co., Midland, Mich., addressing the American Institute of Chemical Engineers.

"It is an inescapable conclusion" says Dr. Putnam, "that industry damages water or renders it less fit for use by other members of the public." It should be unnecessary for factories needing water to free it from pollution first. Certainly it should not be necessary for households to use polluted water.

No worse advertisement for a business can be imagined than to see a stream yellow with filth, flowing through a forested recreation spot, and to learn that this is the work of the Blank Company, which has not taken the trouble to process its waste. It is sure to provoke antagonism on the part of sportsmen's organizations, and resentment from the unorganized public.

Also many companies which undertook to dispose of their own wastes have discovered in the process useful by-products decidedly worth salvaging.

Gentlemen who own industrial plants, it pays to clean up your own messes.

CLAIMING THE MOON

TWO Pennsylvanians must think that the housing shortage is due to a lack of building sites. Robert D. Eaton and Charles W. Honhold of Sewickley have just filed claims for the moon, with the Bureau of Land Management at Washington. The Bureau has denied the claims, one reason being that, following the rule of the federal homestead laws, the applicant must first inspect the area in person and show that he is familiar with the land and its surroundings. This the two Pennsylvanians might find it hard to establish.

There is another, even more valid reason for refusing the claim. The United States has not as yet filed any claim to the moon. To do so might not be much worse than claiming the icebound Antarctic, which several nations are trying to do. Should we be forehanded, and get our order in first?

Presidential candidates may pretend not to be working hard for the nomination, but it is noticeable that, when the convention is over, they usually go away for a long rest.

George E. Sokolsky's

These Days

I have indicated in two articles that I did not believe that the Collier's Prize presented to Senator Barkley was fair. In his letter to Washington newsmen, commentators, and columnists requesting them to express a preference, James C. Derieux, representing Collier's, wrote:

"Mr. Eric Johnston, chairman, other members of Collier's Congressional Awards Committee, and the editors of Collier's will be grateful to you for the names of three senators and three representatives who, in your opinion, rendered the most distinguished services to our country during the calendar year 1947. The committee is now in process of selecting the Senator and the Representative who will receive the 1947 awards, and your opinion, which will be held in confidence, will be helpful and respected. If you can participate in this poll, please list the names in the order of your preference, and give reasons for your selections."

It is not said in this letter or in the letter to newspaper editors that the polls would be given no consideration. Yet, William L. Chenery, publisher of Collier's, makes the point:

"As one who answers questions to those taking many kinds of polls, I do not expect the polls to do more than indicate a state of public opinion. Certainly the American people do not take the Gallup polls or the Roper polls as substitutes for the regular elections. I see no reason for the Collier's Congressional Awards Committee, which was selected to represent different important groups, to be bound by any of the polls taken for the purposes of providing information."

I agree with Chenery. Polls are not substitutes for elections nor have I ever discovered that they have any value at all except to increase confusion. But if, as Chenery indicates, the polls are not a substitute for elections, why did he hold these polls?

There is a further point about all this. The committee, appointed by Collier's, did not ask for the polls. They were given to the committee by Collier's representative, who told them that the polls, as well as other data, were available to the committee but they were not bound to give them any consideration. No similar statement was made to those who were polled. They must have assumed that their preferences would be given every consideration, or why were they bothered?

Three ballots were taken among the committee. Senator Vandenberg was excluded because he had been given the prize the year before; Senator Taft was excluded because he was an active candidate for the presidency. My impression is that the committee's choice fell among Senators Barkley, Byrd and Ives.

It would be interesting to know on what data they found Barkley's 1947 record preferable to that of Byrd or Ives. Were it 1945 or 1946, the result might be understandable, but why in 1947? The suggestion that Barkley showed wonderful ability in handling the two party systems is so far-fetched that not one member of this committee could, I am sure, sustain it by facts. The answer to the whole business seems to be that this committee did not want to give Taft the favorable publicity that publication of the polls would produce.

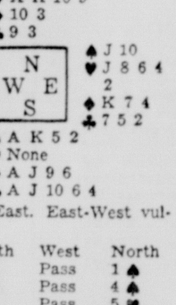
FIND PARTICULAR CARDS

JUST BECAUSE your pair is equipped with the Blackwood convention—that is no reason why you have to use it always when you are probing for a possible slam, either small or grand. There are cases in which your failure to use it gives your partner much clearer information than if it were not in your equipment at all. If you cue-bid a couple of suits in addition to the one previously agreed upon as the trump, you are of course showing a blank in the other, the aces of those two, and are asking him to go all the way if he has the kings in both of them.



(Dealer: East. East-West vulnerable.)

East	South	West	North
Pass	1 ♣	Pass	1 ♠
Pass	3 ♠	Pass	4 ♠
Pass	5 ♦	Pass	5 ♥
Pass	6 ♣	Pass	6 ♠

Three of the four North-South pairs in the individual championship of New York's Union League Club reached that same contract, all of them making it. If the grand slam had been in the cards, however, this pair would have had the best chance to reach it, in view of the methods used by South, Harold Colvin, since he had a keen partner in the North who could read his purpose—six-foot-four Gilbert P. Inglis.

The two had just exchanged bidding views, deciding to employ the Blackwood convention. So, when South cue-bid his diamonds instead of bidding 4-No Trumps, Mr. Inglis felt sure South had a void suit. After he showed his own one ace with 5-Hearts, his partner's 6-Clubs told him the whole story. He knew a fine player like Mr. Colvin would not do that except with a very logical purpose, especially since the Blackwood had been laid on the shelf.

"That bidding positively shows a heart blank, the aces of both minors and plenty of top honor strength in spades," he reflected. "He is therefore asking me if I have the kings of both diamonds and clubs. If I had held them both, I would have bid 7-Spades. Having neither, I bid only the small slam." He made it after the spade lead, and could have against any lead the opponents could have chosen, even a diamond.

Andrew laughed. "Fill her up," he said, and moved toward the air-hose purposefully. A mottled shape sprang out at him from behind a stack of tires, and he jerked back instinctively. The tortoise-shell cat stood perfectly still in his path, staring at him with enigmatic yellow eyes and a slowly switching tail-tip.

"Joe, you come over here," the gas station proprietor called, and the cat moved to one side. Andrew stooped down to test his tires and turned his head to look up.

"Joe's an unusual name for a cat," he said.

"Unusual cat," E. Merwell, Prop. stated. Then, relenting, he added, "Short for Joe Stalin. He's full of communistic ideas, and he's a real dictator, to boot."

Andrew chuckled. He liked this man with his dry humor and decided to ask him a few questions, feeling that he would get truthful answers. Without looking up, he said, "By the way, do you know of any farms for sale around here?"

His head was bent and so he did not see the speculative glance which Merwell cast at the expensive car, and Andrew's well-tailored clothes. "Summer place?" he asked.

"Oh, no, I'd be there all year round. A place I could work myself."

"What's the matter, you got to stick yourself out in the country for your health?" The proprietor hooked the hose to the side of the pump, and moved to give the windshield a perfunctory swab.

"Nothing of the sort. I intend to settle here, and I want a place that will be small enough to work, and big enough to support me."

The man laughed. "Brother, men have been lookin' for a place like that since Adam!" He paused a moment, then asked incredulously, "You a farmer?"

"Not yet." Andrew thought, with some amusement, if I stay here I'll soon be as laconic as the natives.

"Well," Merwell informed him, as Andrew got back into the car, and handed him a bill, "I'll keep you in mind. If I hear of any wonder-farm that's small enough for one man to work, and good enough to support him, I'll sure let you know—if I don't cop it myself."

Andrew chuckled. As he started to drive out of the station, he suddenly braked, and called back over his shoulder. "Oh, I forgot! It's got to be cheap, too!"

'Round Circleville - - - - - Hour by Hour

Pages From the Diary of An Antiquated Reporter:

Up to find the barometer heading upward again after a million dollar rain. Countryside smiling again and beautiful without that distraught look of just a few days ago. Stood on the hill and looked northward toward the ville wondering just how long we will wait before letting out the girdle of corporate limits that already is too small for us. The time can not be far away and our city fathers should be scanning the future and making plans. Also the planning commission should be preparing recommendations. No breeze at all yet an old kleenex taking off and making altitude. Landed in a tree and then did note a sparrow in possession. Suppose it caught cold in that rain? And high in the cottonwood did note a new bird nest. Nothing tidy about it, but huge. Looks like a forkful of old hay. What kind of a bird is that? Too big for anything I have seen around.

There goes George Morris, the Circleville high school pitcher, who on June 14 is to work out before Cincinnati Reds experts. May be his big chance. Came as a result of the interest of Fred Clark. Met George Gearhart and worried him no end because I failed to ask how he got the great lump on his forehead. Very worried because I kept looking at it and talking about other matters. Anyway, I had heard about a flying piece of wood as he chopped. And it was more fun to let him wonder why an inquisitive newsman asked no questions when everyone else had.

Here and there talk about the loss of the services of Charles Zaenglein after 31 years as an instructor in our schools. And a great loss it is. In the minds of most folk the most valuable unit in the system. He was stern and just and all the kids respected him and learned under him. His patience with modern child psychology was limited. More of the "spare the rod and spoil the child" thinkers. You have seen his musicians in the CHS bands and know what he accomplished. Youths in his other classes accomplished as much. And if those kids and the kids of the last 31 years do not band together in some sort of testimonial for such a good influence within the community they are an ungrateful lot. And don't just talk about it. Do it!

Harold Dresbach has a dachshund that most folk have seen. Named Hudepohl. Smart dog. Despises hillbilly music and lets the world know of his dislike when it sneaks in on the Dresbach radio. Never thought my mind would run on a level with that of a dog, but it does. Nice going Hudy.

Out and around the ville, meeting up with Earl Smith and being his guest at coffee. Laughed with John Boggs in a discussion of what Cincinnati thinks may be baseball and passed the time of day with Joe and Bob Adkins. Rode through the north end to note great progress on new houses under construction. Waved to Wallace Crist who was being taken for a walk by his grandson and to Bud Hardin who was inspecting his minnow pond. Wondered just how many new houses this town could use. It's a guess, but my figure is at least 20. Every day in the office come requests, many of them from Columbus and elsewhere, relative to availability of living quarters. And the price at which residences have been selling is further proof of a great shortage.

Home in the cool of the afternoon to mow the lawn and inspect the plants, many of which are in bloom. Sufficient proof that they are none of my doing. Then dinner and a quiet evening trying to catch up on neglected reading.

60 Ladies Attend Tea Sponsored By Guild As Part Of Aid Program

Meeting Is Held At Jackson School

About 60 guests were entertained Wednesday afternoon at a "silver tea" sponsored by the Union Guild in Jackson Township school. The tea was a continuation of the guild's welfare program to help needy families.

Afternoon activities included a punch bowl and beautifully decorated tea table along with entertainment program headed by Mrs. Fred Riggin, general chairman.

Mrs. Sherman Campbell, president of the guild, began activities with a welcome speech and a brief history of guild activities.

Presiding at the punch bowl was Mrs. Roy Newlon while Mrs. Walter Bumgarner presided over the tea table. Decorations for the two-hour festival were arranged by Mrs. Marvin Routt and Mrs. Henry Butt. The food committee was headed by Mrs. Gail Linton, Mrs. Austin Hoover and Mrs. Herbert Thomas.

The program opened with the group singing "Onward Christian Soldiers" which was followed by Mrs. Olan Schooley who was in charge of devotionals.

Two solo accordion presentations were given by Mrs. Garland Minor followed by a humorous reading by Mrs. Willard Dudleson. A piano solo was offered by Mrs. Paul Thompson.

Miss Martha Sharrett, Mrs. Elva Brooks and Mrs. Riggin each sang two vocal solos. Accompanists for the singers were Miss Jane Francis, Mrs. Richard Hudson and Mrs. Harry Kern.

An entertaining playlet was presented to the Guild group and guests by Mrs. Lyle Davis and Miss Helen Kerns, while Mrs. Homer Peters gave two humorous readings.

Miss Janice Schooley accompanied on the piano an instrumental trio consisting of Miss Ruth Troutman, and Misses Mary and Betty Krimmel.

Localites Set For Rose Show

Mack E. Noggle and Dr. W. L. Sprouse, who are local members of the Columbus Rose Club, are working in conjunction with its members for the tenth annual Rose Show.

The show will be staged in the grand ball room of the Neil House from 2 until 8 p. m. Sunday. The event is sponsored for people of Central Ohio who may compete their entries in all the classes. All specimen roses must be grown by the exhibitor in a private outdoor garden. Three ribbons will be awarded first, second and third place in each class.

Exhibitors in the junior show must be between the age of 10 to 17 years and must grow and cultivate their own roses.

Special awards for the 1948 show will be cash winners in classes 14 and 49 (for garden clubs) and to new individual exhibitors in class 13.

For an unusual side dish to serve with broiled ham, put hot cooked carrots through ricer. mix with few golden raisins, dress with butter, season with salt and pepper.

Hay Crop Hiked When Spray Used

DDT Said Best Insecticide

COLUMBUS, June 10—In many cases, Ohio farmers can make a profit by spraying or dusting alfalfa and clover which is cut for hay or is harvested for seed.

The principal insect enemies of legume hay and seed crops in Ohio are leaf hoppers, spittle bugs, plant bugs, and grasshoppers. The insecticide used is DDT for all treatments except to control spittle bug nymphs and grasshoppers.

Attacks of leaf hoppers and spittle bugs sometimes stunt clover or alfalfa and turn the plants yellow. The spittle bugs get their name from the blobs of frothy liquid that appear on plants where those insects are working. They may appear in wet seasons on clover in June or on the second cutting of alfalfa.

DDT can be used either as a dust or as a spray to control leaf hoppers, and adult spittle bugs on clover or alfalfa. Experts recommend the three percent DDT powder, the 50 percent wettable powder mixed with water, or the DDT liquid concentrate mixed with water.

The dust is applied at the rate of 30 pounds per acre, the wettable powder is mixed at the rate of one and one-half pounds to 100 gallons of water, and two quarts of the liquid concentrate is mixed with four and one-half or with nine and one-half gallons of water.

The dust can be applied with a farm duster or by airplane. The wettable DDT powder spray is applied at the rate of 150 gallons per acre but the liquid concentrate can be applied with a small outfit that applies five or 10 gallons of the spray mixture per acre.

ANY SPRAYER which has been used to apply 2,4-D must be cleaned thoroughly with household ammonia before being used for DDT sprays in clover or alfalfa fields.

Leaf hoppers, plant bugs, and adult spittle bugs can be controlled with one application of DDT powder or spray. Spittle bug nymphs are killed with one and one-half pounds of 50 percent benzene hexachloride powder in 100 gallons of water, with the spray applied at the rate of 150 gallons per acre and at 400 to 500 pounds pressure.

Grasshoppers can be controlled on clover or alfalfa by adding one and one-half pounds of 50 percent wettable chlordane powder to any of the DDT sprays.

A five percent chlordane dust can be used alone to control grasshoppers on any crop, and the material can be applied with a duster or by airplane. Chlordane alone will not control plant bugs which destroy clover and alfalfa blooms.

Experts say applications of DDT on clover or alfalfa before the plants bloom will not kill any bees. They suggest that dairy cattle be kept off pastures for three weeks after DDT has been applied and that clover or alfalfa hay from sprayed fields be held for three weeks before feeding to the dairy herd. DDT sprays or dusts do not harm livestock but the DDT can be detected in milk of cows which have grazed in freshly sprayed fields.

Sheriff Urges Heed Signs

Traffic signs are "signs of life" and should be heeded without reservation while driving, Sheriff Charles H. Radcliff declared Thursday.

"Each traffic sign is put up for a specific purpose, and every driver should be thoroughly familiar with each sign and to know what its shape and color means to him," the sheriff asserted.

Pickaway County's highways are marked in accordance with the National Manuel of Traffic Control Devices. By learning the signs in the county the driver can apply the same principles wherever he goes, the sheriff pointed out.

Bailment Liquor Plan Revived

COLUMBUS, June 10 — The state liquor department reverted to the prewar "bailment plan" today to prevent accumulation of huge surplus stocks of slow-moving beverages.

Director Dale Dunifon set June 28 as the effective date of the plan, which will not include whisky and gin.

Under the system, the state does not assume title to the liquor until it moves out of warehouses into state stores.

The plan was in effect until 1944 when shortages of supplies caused it to be abandoned. It requires distillers to stand all charges until the liquor reaches store shelves.

Weighted Body Found In River

JERSEY CITY, N. J., June 10—The weighted, nude body of a woman found in the Hudson river near Jersey City was identified early today by police as Helen Mack of Brooklyn.

Identification was made by New York authorities through fingerprints.

The body of Miss Mack, also known as Alice Winchell, was found by members of a tug boat crew last night.

Police said a 20-pound cylinder had been tied to the woman's neck and body by a rope. The body bore numerous bruises and had been in the water about three weeks.

'Peace Of Mind' Author Is Dead

BOSTON, June 10—The body of Dr. Joshua Loth Liebman, noted author of "Peace of Mind," will lie in state today at a Brookline chapel.

Funeral services for the 41-year-old rabbi who died of a heart attack yesterday will be held tomorrow. His book "Peace of Mind" became a best seller immediately after it was published two years ago.

Escapees Use Ancient Route

CANTON, June 10 — Stark County sheriff's deputies pressed a search today for two prisoners who escaped from the county's antiquated jail.

The pair was identified by Sheriff Richard R. France as Wilford F. Beaver and Joseph C. Shields, both 19, of Sebring, in Mahoning County. They were serving three-month sentences for petty thefts.

Sheriff Shields said the prisoners pryed a bar from a window through which four other men escaped last year.

Hay Crop Hiked When Spray Used

DDT Said Best Insecticide

COLUMBUS, June 10—In many cases, Ohio farmers can make a profit by spraying or dusting alfalfa and clover which is cut for hay or is harvested for seed.

The principal insect enemies of legume hay and seed crops in Ohio are leaf hoppers, spittle bugs, plant bugs, and grasshoppers. The insecticide used is DDT for all treatments except to control spittle bug nymphs and grasshoppers.

Attacks of leaf hoppers and spittle bugs sometimes stunt clover or alfalfa and turn the plants yellow. The dust is applied at the rate of 30 pounds per acre, the wettable powder is mixed at the rate of one and one-half pounds to 100 gallons of water, and two quarts of the liquid concentrate is mixed with four and one-half or with nine and one-half gallons of water.

The dust can be applied with a farm duster or by airplane. The wettable DDT powder spray is applied at the rate of 150 gallons per acre but the liquid concentrate can be applied with a small outfit that applies five or 10 gallons of the spray mixture per acre.

ANY SPRAYER which has been used to apply 2,4-D must be cleaned thoroughly with household ammonia before being used for DDT sprays in clover or alfalfa fields.

more than $5 million. The two state officials declared that "this means that more than $300 thousand in building bonds could be voted and this amount would be ample to build and equip the proposed new high school."

The new district would be eligible to participate in the state school plant rehabilitation fund and this would afford assistance in improving present elementary buildings.

The survey showed that Benton is the only district with bonded indebtedness. This amounts to $25,000 with a tax rate for debt purposes set at 3.5 mills.

The two state educators stated that "the greatest improvement can be made in the high school program. With a larger group of pupils and better facilities, it will be possible to provide a program equal to the best in the state.

"In place of the three inadequate industrial arts shops, science laboratories, home economics departments, libraries and commercial departments now being maintained, only one each will be needed. This means it will be possible to provide the best in each instance."

The new program should include:

1. The regular academic subjects.
2. A strong commercial department.
3. A good general industrial arts program including such areas as mechanical drawing; wood working; metal working (machine shop, welding, foundry, sheet metal, bench work); electrial and automotive shops.
4. Vocational agriculture.
5. A four-year course in home economics including sewing, cooking, foods, clothing, home furnishing, family relationship, child development, home nursing and home management.
6. An excellent department of music. Including both vocal and instrumental work.
7. Physical education and health department.
8. Speech department including public speaking, debating and dramatics.
9. Student activity programs such as 4-H Clubs, Hi-Y, Girl's Reserve, etc.

Missing Geese Are Returned To City Zoo

CLEVELAND, June 10—Two Egyptain geese were back in the familiar confines of Cleveland Zoo today after a one-day "abduction."

The geese, along with a blue goose, disappeared Tuesday night from the wild waterfowl sanctuary. Another blue goose was found trussed up and dead.

One of the Egyptian geese was found ambling along West 25th street yesterday by Patrolmen Robert Gerrity and Benjamin Headley. They said pedestrians were giving the strange creature a wide leeway as it meandered along the busy thoroughfare.

How the bird got there has not yet been determined. Secrecy surrounds the return of the other goose also. Police said merely that they were called to a west side home where they found the goose. They refused to reveal the name of their informer.

Commonlaw Wife To Get Estate

CANTON, June 10—The claims of Mrs. Rose Bonni Ryan to the $200,000 estate left by her late husband, Harry Ryan, were upheld here late yesterday by an appelate court decision.

The fifth district court of appeals, confirming a ruling made last February, declared Mrs. Ryan sole heir as Ryan's commonlaw wife.

A number of sisters and brothers of the dead man were fighting Mrs. Ryan's claim to the estate, $150,000 of which, in cash, was found in Ryan's safe at the suburban Reedurban home.

Pair Indicted In Death Of Butler Farmer

HAMILTON, June 10—Cyril Gordon, 26, and Mrs. Marie Conn Abbott, 46, were under joint indictment today for first degree murder in the Mattock killing of the woman's prominent farmer husband.

The Butler County grand jury met in special recall session yesterday to consider the Memorial Day slaying.

The body of Mossis Abbott, 46, was found between tracks of the Chesapeake and Ohio Railroad, the skull crushed by a tremendous blow.

Sheriff Charles B. Walke said Gordon took him to a Metamora, Ind., farm where the suspect had thrown away the mattock he used to kill Abbott.

Gordon, a former laborer for Abbott, said he returned to the Abbott farm the night of Memorial Day and got into an argument with the farmer when Abbott refused to divorce his wife.

Ohio Convicts 53 Firebugs

COLUMBUS, June 10—Fifty-three Ohio "firebugs" have been convicted of arson in the past seven months.

The figure was stipulated by Commerce Director Fred J. Milligan in his report on the activities of the state's new arson bureau since it was established last November.

Milligan compared the figures up to June 1 with 25 convictions in 1946 and 26 in 1945.

Parents Seeking To Open Casket

AKRON, June 10—Parents of a suburban Cuyahoga Heights soldier killed in World War II sought court permission today to open their son's casket and establish his identity.

The parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Peterson, filed a petition for the order in Summit County common pleas court. The action was said by legal authorities to be the first such taken in the country.

A regulation of the Ohio Public Health Council forbids the opening of any hermeticaly sealed coffin shipped into the state except on a court order.

In their petition, the Petersons stated that their son, Garret E., was reported killed in action April 5, 1945. He served as a second lieutenant with the Army Air Forces in the Asiatic theatre.

Car Stolen

An auto, valued at $2,800 and owned by Clarence Wagner of Williamsport, was reported stolen Monday night from a parking lot in Zanesville.

Parents Seeking To Open Casket

AKRON, June 10—Parents of a suburban Cuyahoga Heights soldier killed in World War II sought court permission today to open their son's casket and establish his identity.

The parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Peterson, filed a petition for the order in Summit County common pleas court. The action was said by legal authorities to be the first such taken in the country.

A regulation of the Ohio Public Health Council forbids the opening of any hermeticaly sealed coffin shipped into the state except on a court order.

In their petition, the Petersons stated that their son, Garret E., was reported killed in action April 5, 1945. He served as a second lieutenant with the Army Air Forces in the Asiatic theatre.

Soil Building Said Answer To Yields

Profits Threatened By Rising Costs

The pincer movement on farm profits threatened by rising production costs heightens the need for soil building methods that will boost crop yields and cut unit costs per acre, Larry A. Best, Pickaway County agricultureal agent declared Thursday.

"The margin between what a farmer gets for his products and what it costs him to produce them is narrowing steadily," he says.

"Farm production costs hit a new all-time peak in the first three months of 1948, according to U. S. Department of Agriculture statistics. Wage rates are now 300 percent above prewar levels. Land values are at their 1920 inflationary high. Land rental rates are greater than ever before.

"High production costs are not such a headache when farm prices are high. But when prices drop as they have in recent months, production costs can well determine whether you get by or go in the red. One way to reduce those costs per unit of output and maintain your margin of profit is to increase your yield per acre.

"THE WAY to increase yields is to build your soil's fertility level. Common sense plus a little planning can accomplish this. First, you need a good rotation that balances soil-exhausting row crops with soil-building fa will repair soil damage causfa will repair soil damage cuased by too many crops of corn in succession.

Legumes will put back organic matter needed to make the soil mellow, well drained, ventilated and easy to work. Their roots will drill through packed-down subsoil and put organic matter deep down. The soil will have more air space and room to store water.

"But legumes by themselves are not the whole remedy. To get thick, heavy stands and husky roots, you have to feed the legumes generously with phosphate and potash. To add to the crop-nourishing organic matter supply, you need to return all possible animal manure and crop aftermath to the soil."

Myrrh is a gum resin produced by a tree that grows in Arabia and eastern Africa. The myrrh tree is small and scubby, spiny, with whitish-gray leaves. The myrrh exudes from the bark in oily, yellowish drops which gradually thicken and become hard and darker in color.

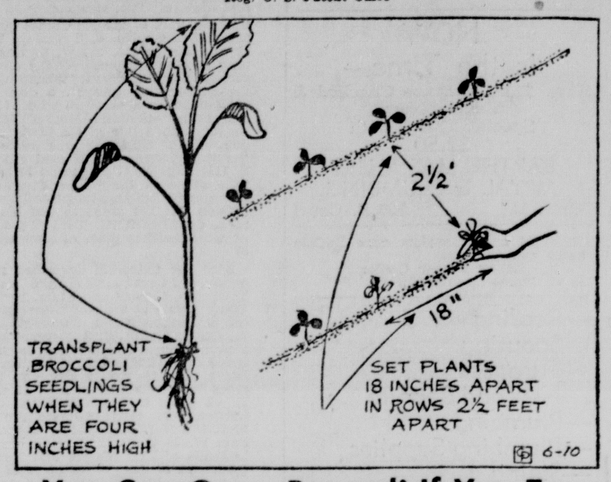
TODAY'S GARDEN-GRAPH

Reg. U. S. Patent Office



You Can Grow Broccoli If You Try

By DEAN HALLIDAY

Distributed by Central Press Association

MANY home gardeners shy away from broccoli because they think they can't grow it.

Broccoli will grow well in any soil providing it is well supplied with organic matter and a moderate supply of moisture.

It should be in every Freedom garden for it is richer in vitamins than cauliflower which it resembles in flavor. It is also far easier to grow than cauliflower since it does not require blanching.

Some gardeners make two plantings of broccoli, one very early or just as soon as the soil can be worked, and a second planting two months later.

If the seeds of broccoli are started in flats or if the seedlings are purchased the plants should be set out in the Freedom garden when about four inches high, as illustrated in the accompanying Garden-Graph.

Inasmuch as the root system of broccoli is very shallow, only the best and strongest plants should be set out if good results are to be assured.

The seedling plants of broccoli can be set as close as 18 inches apart in the row and the rows spaced two and one-half feet apart, as illustrated. If space is available in the Freedom garden the plants can be set farther apart to advantage.

If the weather is at all dry when transplanting broccoli, the freshly set plants should be well watered, or their roots dipped in a thick mud paste just prior to planting.

In recent years seedsmen have devoted much time and care to this plant, and most of them now offer a range of first-class varieties grouped together in their season for sowing and maturing.

County Youth Ready To Attend Boys' State

David Long 16-year-old junior from Perry Township high school, will be one of the more than 805 other Ohio boys to report at Ohio Wesleyan university Saturday for the 12th session of Buckeye Boys' State.

Long, son of Mr. and Mrs. Homer Long of Perry Township, will represent the Circleville American Legion at the mythical state governmental session.

Each boy promptly upon arrival will become a member of one of two mythical political parties and will be assigned to one of 17 cities and of three counties.

W. L. DeWeese of the Columbus Legion state headquarters, said this year's will be the largest Buckeye Boys' State on record by at least 40 citizens.

* * *

ALMOST EVERY boy will be a candidate for public office and by Sunday, the campus will be plastered with homemade political signs. General elections will come Monday.

The 12th governor will be inaugurated and his cabinet and supreme court sworn in at ceremonies that night.

Gov. Thomas J. Herbert will speak and Justice Charles B. Zimmerman of the Ohio supreme court will administer the oath to the new governor.

Each day at the Boys' State is reckoned as the equivalent of three months in regular state, county or city government.

In View Of The News

By J. C. Oestreicher
INS Foreign Observer

Another diplomatic reverse for the Soviet Union is to be seen in the resignation of President Eduard Benes of Czechoslovakia although it ostensibly removed Communism's chief enemy in the state.

There is no question that Benes' health has been poor, and there is no question that he was opposed to serving as a mere figurehead.

But there is no question either that his resignation is at least an implied rebuke to the Communist politicians who remade his democratic government on totalitarian lines in the space of a few days.

His decision to step down is deeply regretted by the Czech and Slovak peoples. But it promises to give strength and vigor to the liberal elements who remain as a check against unbridled party tyranny.

The people of Czechoslovakia long ago became accustomed to absence of their beloved Benes from Prague. They had a national assembly that worked, and until recently they had a government that represented all classes and all parties.

IT SEEMED only natural that Benes' life-work in behalf of independence and freedom should be crowned by virtual retirement at his lovely Bohemian home, serving as elder statesman and adviser in the titular role of president.

Premier Klement Gottwald, who is expected to succeed Benes much as Adolf Hitler succeeded German President Paul von Hindenburg, attempted to bridge an obvious gap in the resignation.

He announced that Benes will have "presidential treatment" for the rest of his life and will reside in beautiful Lany castle with all the privileges and dignities of a chief executive.

Some observers may interpret the retirement as a virtual act of force on the part of Gottwald—that he feared Benes' continued functioning as president would weaken his own regime.

This seems unlikely, however. Gottwald could not help but be stronger with Benes ostensibly a member of his official family. Everything seems to point to the fact that Benes, after long deliberation, found his position entirely untenable.

From where I sit ... by Joe Marsh

Who is this Man?

Now and then, in the pages of the Clarion, I run a biographical quiz, under the heading of "Who Is This Man?" For instance...

"He was one of the earliest lovers in American history...

"And yet he was too shy to court a woman outright...

"He came to the New World on the Mayflower...

"A cooper to repair the beer barrels accompanying the Pilgrims...

"Who is this man?"

I thought that everybody was stumped. But not Ma Hoskins, who returned the clipping to me with "John Alden" on it. She recognized all the clues—including that reference to "beer" and "cooper."

For Ma—who's read her history, knows that beer as the beverage of moderation, is as old in this land of ours as the never-ending American search for tolerance which brought the Pilgrims over to this country in the first place.

Soil Building Said Answer To Yields

Profits Threatened By Rising Costs

The pincer movement on farm profits threatened by rising production costs heightens the need for soil building methods that will boost crop yields and cut unit costs per acre, Larry A. Best, Pickaway County agricultureal agent declared Thursday.

"The margin between what a farmer gets for his products and what it costs him to produce them is narrowing steadily," he says.

"Farm production costs hit a new all-time peak in the first three months of 1948, according to U. S. Department of Agriculture statistics. Wage rates are now 300 percent above prewar levels. Land values are at their 1920 inflationary high. Land rental rates are greater than ever before.

"High production costs are not such a headache when farm prices are high. But when prices drop as they have in recent months, production costs can well determine whether you get by or go in the red. One way to reduce those costs per unit of output and maintain your margin of profit is to increase your yield per acre.

"THE WAY to increase yields is to build your soil's fertility level. Common sense plus a little planning can accomplish this. First, you need a good rotation that balances soil-exhausting row crops with soil-building fa will repair soil damage causfa will repair soil damage cuased by too many crops of corn in succession.

Legumes will put back organic matter needed to make the soil mellow, well drained, ventilated and easy to work. Their roots will drill through packed-down subsoil and put organic matter deep down. The soil will have more air space and room to store water.

"But legumes by themselves are not the whole remedy. To get thick, heavy stands and husky roots, you have to feed the legumes generously with phosphate and potash. To add to the crop-nourishing organic matter supply, you need to return all possible animal manure and crop aftermath to the soil."

Myrrh is a gum resin produced by a tree that grows in Arabia and eastern Africa. The myrrh tree is small and scubby, spiny, with whitish-gray leaves. The myrrh exudes from the bark in oily, yellowish drops which gradually thicken and become hard and darker in color.

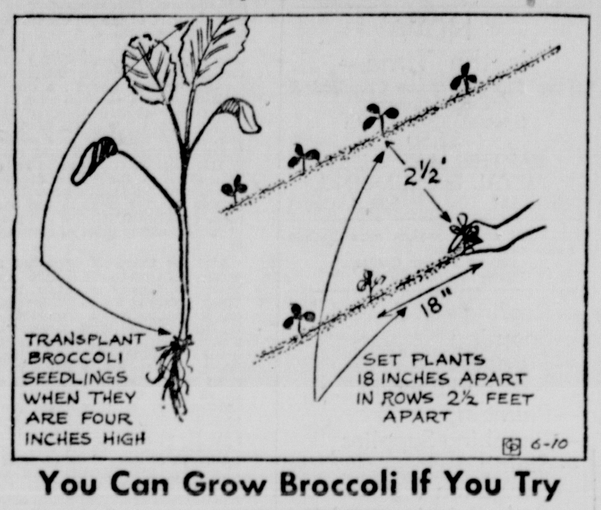
TODAY'S GARDEN-GRAPH

Reg. U. S. Patent Office



You Can Grow Broccoli If You Try

By DEAN HALLIDAY

Distributed by Central Press Association

MANY home gardeners shy away from broccoli because they think they can't grow it.

Broccoli will grow well in any soil providing it is well supplied with organic matter and a moderate supply of moisture.

It should be in every Freedom garden for it is richer in vitamins than cauliflower which it resembles in flavor. It is also far easier to grow than cauliflower since it does not require blanching.

Some gardeners make two plantings of broccoli, one very early or just as soon as the soil can be worked, and a second planting two months later.

If the seeds of broccoli are started in flats or if the seedlings are purchased the plants should be set out in the Freedom garden when about four inches high, as illustrated in the accompanying Garden-Graph.

Inasmuch as the root system of broccoli is very shallow, only the best and strongest plants should be set out if good results are to be assured.

The seedling plants of broccoli can be set as close as 18 inches apart in the row and the rows spaced two and one-half feet apart, as illustrated. If space is available in the Freedom garden the plants can be set farther apart to advantage.

If the weather is at all dry when transplanting broccoli, the freshly set plants should be well watered, or their roots dipped in a thick mud paste just prior to planting.

In recent years seedsmen have devoted much time and care to this plant, and most of them now offer a range of first-class varieties grouped together in their season for sowing and maturing.

County Youth Ready To Attend Boys' State

David Long 16-year-old junior from Perry Township high school, will be one of the more than 805 other Ohio boys to report at Ohio Wesleyan university Saturday for the 12th session of Buckeye Boys' State.

Long, son of Mr. and Mrs. Homer Long of Perry Township, will represent the Circleville American Legion at the mythical state governmental session.

Each boy promptly upon arrival will become a member of one of two mythical political parties and will be assigned to one of 17 cities and of three counties.

W. L. DeWeese of the Columbus Legion state headquarters, said this year's will be the largest Buckeye Boys' State on record by at least 40 citizens.

* * *

ALMOST EVERY boy will be a candidate for public office and by Sunday, the campus will be plastered with homemade political signs. General elections will come Monday.

The 12th governor will be inaugurated and his cabinet and supreme court sworn in at ceremonies that night.

Gov. Thomas J. Herbert will speak and Justice Charles B. Zimmerman of the Ohio supreme court will administer the oath to the new governor.

Each day at the Boys' State is reckoned as the equivalent of three months in regular state, county or city government.

In View Of The News

By J. C. Oestreicher
INS Foreign Observer

Another diplomatic reverse for the Soviet Union is to be seen in the resignation of President Eduard Benes of Czechoslovakia although it ostensibly removed Communism's chief enemy in the state.

There is no question that Benes' health has been poor, and there is no question that he was opposed to serving as a mere figurehead.

But there is no question either that his resignation is at least an implied rebuke to the Communist politicians who remade his democratic government on totalitarian lines in the space of a few days.

His decision to step down is deeply regretted by the Czech and Slovak peoples. But it promises to give strength and vigor to the liberal elements who remain as a check against unbridled party tyranny.

The people of Czechoslovakia long ago became accustomed to absence of their beloved Benes from Prague. They had a national assembly that worked, and until recently they had a government that represented all classes and all parties.

IT SEEMED only natural that Benes' life-work in behalf of independence and freedom should be crowned by virtual retirement at his lovely Bohemian home, serving as elder statesman and adviser in the titular role of president.

Premier Klement Gottwald, who is expected to succeed Benes much as Adolf Hitler succeeded German President Paul von Hindenburg, attempted to bridge an obvious gap in the resignation.

He announced that Benes will have "presidential treatment" for the rest of his life and will reside in beautiful Lany castle with all the privileges and dignities of a chief executive.

Some observers may interpret the retirement as a virtual act of force on the part of Gottwald—that he feared Benes' continued functioning as president would weaken his own regime.

This seems unlikely, however. Gottwald could not help but be stronger with Benes ostensibly a member of his official family. Everything seems to point to the fact that Benes, after long deliberation, found his position entirely untenable.

In Memoriam

BAKER, RALPH G.

In loving memory of our beloved Son, who was killed in action on Okinawa June 9th 1945. This poem was composed by him before entering the service in the U. S. M. C.

To a Red Rose

There are flowers of many descriptions,
Some colors of Pink Blue and White.
And as of others I have a favorite,
That I like to bring to light.
Some love tulips, magnolias or down,
Still there is one which I place over those,
For in my eye its the king, to be crowned.
Yes, its the red American Rose.
Its fragrance surpasses the Lilly,
Its beauty can never be excelled
And I want at the end of life's journey,
A Rose in my hand to be held.
Nothing on earth has more beauty.
Nothing more happiness brings;
So say it with flowers and give gladly,
One that is fit for a king.
They struggle for their very existance,
Through happiness, turmoil, and strife
Just to make a little more happy.
This journey of ours called life.

In pursuance of the terms and provisions and by the authority of the Last Will and Testament of Charles C. Heffner, deceased, the undersigned Executors will offer for sale at Public Auction on Monday the 14th day of June, 1948, at 2:00 o'clock p. m., at the door of the Court House in Circleville, Ohio, the following described real estate situated in the County of Pickaway and State of Ohio, and bounded and described as follows:

Tract No. 1: The following described real estate situated in the Township of Walnut, County of Pickaway and State of Ohio, to-wit:

Being the southwest quarter of Section No. 34, in Township No. 9 Range No. 21 M. S. Beginning at a stake in the southwest corner of said Section; thence running with the section and township line E. 161 poles to a post; thence N. 160½ poles to a post; thence S. 161 poles to a post; thence S. 160½ poles to the place of beginning, CONTAINING One Hundred and Sixty-one and one-half (161½) acres of land, more or less.

Tract No. 2 The following described real estate situated in the Township of Washington, County of Pickaway and State of Ohio, towit:

Beginning at a stone in the road and township line, northeast corner to Section No. 4, in Township No. 11, Range No. 21, W. S.; thence with the section line S. 7 deg. W. 158 2-10 poles to a stone, (half-section corner); thence with the half-section line N. 86½ deg. W. 82 6-10 poles to a stone in the road, southeast corner to lands of Rachel Bortz; thence with said road N 12 deg. E. 47 68-100 poles to a stake; thence N. 87 deg. W. 109 6-10 poles to a stake in the half-section line and east line of lands formerly owned by David Helvering; thence with said line N 5½ deg. E. 110 12-100 poles to a stone in the road and township line; thence with said road and line S. 86½ deg. E. 192 poles to the beginning, CONTAINING 155 acres and 80 poles of land, more or less, and being a part of the Northeast Quarter of Section No. 4, Township No. 11, Range No. 21, W. S.

Tract No. 3 The following described real estate situated in the Township of Washington, County of Pickaway and State of Ohio, to-wit:

Being a part of the Northeast quarter of Section No. 4, Township No. 11 and Range No. 21, W. S. Beginning at a stone, center of the above named Section No. 4; thence with the half-section line N. 5 deg. E. 47.83 poles to a stone in said line and corner to John Morris' land; thence with a line of his land S. 87 deg. E. 109 3-5 poles to a stone in the road; thence with said road S. 11½ deg. W. 47 poles and 17 links to a stone in the halfsection line; thence with said half-section line N. 87 deg. W. 104 poles to the beginning, CONTAINING Thirty-one acres and eighty poles of land, more or less.

Also the following described real estate situated in the same Township, County and State, to-wit: Being a part of the North-east quarter of Section No. 4, Township No. 11, Range No. 21 W. S. Beginning at a stone, north-west corner to 31½ acres of land now owned by Rachel Bortz, thence No 5 deg. E. 5.88 poles to a stake; thence S. 87 deg. E. 62 poles to a stake in the line between the lands of said John Morris and Rachel Bortz; thence 5 deg. W. 88 poles to a stone corner to lands of said Morris and Bortz; thence N. 87 deg. W. 62 poles to the beginning, CONTAINING 2.3 acres of land, more or less. This last tract herein described being conveyed for the purpose of establishing a straight line between the lands of John Morris and Rachel Bortz. The amount of land conveyed by this deed as shown by the first description herein, towit: Thirty-one acres and eighty poles (31A and 80P)

Tract No. 4 The following described real estate situated in the city of Circleville, County of Pickaway and State of Ohio, to-wit:

1. Being Lo. No. 1796 and 5 feet off of the south side of Lot No. 1795 in I. N. Abernethy's North end Addition to the said city of Circleville, Ohio.

2. Being Lots Nos. 1798 and 1799 in I. N. Abernethy's North end addition to said City of Circleville, Ohio.

3. Beginning at an iron post in the south line of a 12 foot alley, Baume's Addition and north west corner to this trac, and corner to the G. E. Wagner tract; thence with the south line of South Alley S. 85 deg. 45' E. 10 feet to a stake in the west line of North-end Alley; thence with the west line of said alley S. 4 deg. 15' W. 174.9 feet to a stake in the south line of Garden Alley, now closed and northeast corner to Lot No. 1798; thence with the north lines of Lots No. 1798 and 1799 N. 85 deg. 45' W. 100 feet to a stake; corner to G. E. Wagner and northwest corner to Lot No 1799; thence N. 4 deg. 15' E. 174.9 feet to the beginning, CONTAINING 44-100 acres of land, more or less, EXCEPT THAT part of Garden Alley which is now closed. Being a part of Section No. 18, Township No. 11, Range No. 22 W. S.

Tract No. 1 above, is one farm of 161½ acres, more or less, containing a good ten room house with bath, one large barn and one small barn, six room tenant house, garage and several sheds. It also contains about 30 acres of good timber ready for cutting. This tract will be sold separately, as one farm.

Tracts Nos. 2 and 3 above, constitute one farm of approximately 188 acres and will be sold together as one farm. Said 188 acre farm contains brick house, two barns, double crib and granary, and summer kitchen. Also, the landlords share of approximately 81 acres of growing wheat and approximately 20 acres of growing corn, will go with the farm.

Tract No. 4 consists of an eight room house with bath up and lavatory down, combination gas and coal furnace, basement under entire house, and known as being No. 619 North Court Street in the City of Circleville, Ohio. Said Tract No. 4 also contains a tract of approximately 44-100 acres of land, lying back of and just across the alley from the lot upon which said eight room house is located. All of said Tract No. 4 will be offered together as one tract.

Tract No. 1 above is appraised at $11,000.00; tract Nos. 2 and 3 above are appraised together at $13,250.00; Tract No. 4 above is appraised at $8165.00. None of said tracts will be sold for not less than two thirds of the appraisal.

Terms of sale:—10 percent of the purchase price cash in hand on day of sale, and the balance of the purchase price in full upon execution and delivery of the deed or deeds.

Ray E. Heffner and Floyd W. Hook,
Executors of the estate of Charles C. Heffner, deceased.

In Memoriam

BAKER, RALPH G.

In loving memory of our beloved Son, who was killed in action on Okinawa June 9th 1945. This poem was composed by him betore entering the service in the U. S. M. C.

To a Red Rose

There are flowers of many descriptions,
Some colors of Pink Blue and White,
And as of others I have a favorite,
That I like to bring to light.
Some love tulips, magnolias or down,
Still there is one which I place over those,
For in my eye its the king, to be crowned.
Yes, its the red American Rose.
Its fragrance surpasses the Lilly,
Its beauty can never be excelled
And I want at the end of life's journey,
A Rose in my hand to be held.
Nothing on earth has more beauty,
Nothing more happiness brings;
So say it with flowers and give gladly,
One that is fit for a king.
They struggle for their very existance,
Through happiness, turmoil, and strife
Just to make a little more happy.
This journey of ours called life.

Heffner, deceased, the undersigned Executors will offer for sale at Public Auction on Monday the 14th day of June, 1948, at 2:00 o'clock p. m., at the door of the Court House in Circleville, Ohio, the following described real estate situated in the County of Pickaway and State of Ohio, and bounded and described as follows:

Tract No. 1: The following described real estate situated in the Township of Walnut, County of Pickaway and State of Ohio, to-wit:

Being the southwest quarter of Section No. 34, in Township No. 9 Range No. 2 M. S. Beginning at a stake in the southwest corner of said Section; thence running with the section and township line E. 161 poles to a post; thence N. 160½ poles to a post; thence S. 161 poles to a post; thence S. 160½ poles to the place of beginning, CONTAINING One Hundred and Sixty-one and one-half (161½) acres of land, more or less.

Tract No. 2 The following described real estate situated in the Township of Washington County of Pickaway and State of Ohio, towit:

Beginning at a stone in the road and township line, northeast corner to Section No. 4, in Township No. 11, Range No. 21, W. S.; thence with the section line S. 7 deg. W. 158 2-10 poles to a stone, (half-section corner); thence with the half-section line N. 86½ deg. W. 82 6-10 poles to a stone in the road, southeast corner to lands of Rachel Bortz; thence with said road N 12 deg. E. 47 68-100 poles to a stake; thence N. 87 deg. W. 109 6-10 poles to a stake in the half-section line and east line of lands formerly owned by David Helvering; thence with said line N 3½ deg. E. 110 12-100 poles to a stone in the road and township line; thence with said road and line S. 86½ deg. E. 192 poles to the beginning, CONTAINING 155 acres and 80 poles of land, more or less, and being a part of the Northeast Quarter of Section No. 4, Township No. 11, Range No. 21, W. S.

Tract No. 3 The following described real estate situated in the Township of Washington, County of Pickaway and State of Ohio, to-wit:

Being a part of the Northeast quarter of Section No. 4, Township No. 11 and Range No. 21, W. S. Beginning at a stone, center of the above named Section No. 4; thence with the half-section line N. 5 deg. E. 47.83 poles to a stone in said line and corner to John Morris' land; thence with a line of his land S. 87 deg. E. 109 3-5 poles to a stone in the road; thence with said road S. 11½ deg. W. 47 poles and 17 links to a stone in the halfsection line; thence with said half-section line N. 87 deg. W. 104 poles to the beginning, CONTAINING Thirty-one acres and eighty poles of land, more or less.

Also the following described real estate situated in the same Township, County and State, to-wit: Being a part of the North-east quarter of Section No. 4, Township No. 11, Range No. 21 W. S. Beginning at a stone, north-west corner to 31½ acres of land now owned by Rachel Bortz, thence No. 5 deg. E. 5.88 poles to a stake; thence S. 87 deg. E. 62 poles to a stake in the line between the lands of said John Morris and Rachel Bortz; thence S deg. W. 58 poles to a stone corner to lands of said Morris and Bortz; thence N. 87 deg. W. 62 poles to the beginning, CONTAINING 2.5 acres of land, more or less. This last tract herein described being conveyed for the purpose of establishing a straight line between the lands of John Morris and Rachel Bortz. The amount of land conveyed by this deed as shown by the first description herein, towit: Thirty-one acres and eighty poles (31A and 80P)

Tract No. 4 The following described real estate situated in the city of Circleville, County of Pickaway and State of Ohio, to-wit:

1. Being Lot No. 1796 and 5 feet off of the south side of Lot No. 1795 in I. N. Abernethy's North end Addition to the said city of Circleville, Ohio.

2. Being Lots Nos. 1798 and 1799 in I. N. Abernethy's North end addition to said City of Circleville, Ohio.

3. Beginning at an iron post in the south line of a 12 foot alley, Baume's Addition and north west corner to this trac, and corner to the G. E. Wagner tract; thence with the south line of South Alley S. 85 deg. 45' E. 10 feet to a stake in the west line of North-end Alley; thence with the west line of said alley S. 4 deg. 15' W. 174.9 feet to a stake in the south line of Garden Alley, now closed and northeast corner to Lot No. 1798; thence with the north lines of Lots No. 1798 and 1799 N. 85 deg. 45' W. 100 feet to a stake; corner to G. E. Wagner and northwest corner to Lot No. 1799; thence N. 4 deg. 15' E. 174.9 feet to the beginning, CONTAINING 44-100 acres of land, more or less, EXCEPT THAT part of Garden Alley which is now closed. Being a part of Section No. 18, Township No. 11, Range No. 22 W. S.

Tract No. 1 above, is one farm of 161½ acres, more or less, containing a good ten room house with bath, one large barn and one small barn, six room tenant house, garage and several sheds. It also contains about 30 acres of good timber ready for cutting. This tract will be sold separately, as one farm.

Tracts Nos. 2 and 3 above, constitute one farm of approximately 158 acres and will be sold together as one farm. Said 158 acre farm contains brick house, two barns, double crib and granary, and summer kitchen. Also, the landlords share of approximately 81 acres of growing wheat and approximately 20 acres of growing corn, will go with the farm.

Tract No. 4 consists of an eight room house with bath up and lavatory down, combination gas and coal furnace, basement under entire house, and known as being No. 619 North Court Street in the City of Circleville, Ohio. said Tract No. 4 also contains a tract of approximately 44-100 acres of land, lying back of and just across the alley from the lot upon which said eight room house is located. All of said Tract No. 4 will be offered together as one tract.

Tract No. 1 above is appraised at $11,000.00; tract Nos. 2 and 3 above are appraised together at $13,250.00; Tract No. 4 above is appraised at $8165.00. None of said tracts will be sold for not less than two thirds of the appraisal.

Terms of sale:—10 percent of the purchase price cash in hand on day of sale, and the balance of the purchase price in full upon execution and delivery of the deed or deeds.

Ray E. Heffner and Floyd W. Hook, Executors of the estate of Charles C. Heffner, deceased.

171 Golfers Tee Off In U. S. Open

Hogan Standing As Favorite

LOS ANGELES, June 10 — America's most competitive golf tournament gets under way today with the opening of the 48th U. S. Open Championship.

A field of 171 players—comprising the best of 1,418 original entrants in the nation — teed off in the first round of play, their hopes high of earning the No. 1 title by Saturday night.

With an early crowd on hand, more than 20,000 golfing fans are expected to place more than $50,000 in the treasury of the golf association before the last ball is holed.

Ben Hogan, a 138-pound money golfer from Hershey, Pa., stood top favorite among the participating 135 professionals and 36 amateurs.

HOGAN SLAMS his first ball down the fairway accompanied by two assigned companions—topflight amateur Bud Ward of Spokane and Lloyd Mangrum, former Open titleholder from Los Angeles.

Favored right behind Hogan was Sam Snead of White Sulphur Springs, West Va., a long-driving hitter—a hot and cold putter, whose last minute blowups at crucial periods lost him the coveted title in 1939 and again last year to Defending Champion Lew Worsham.

Nine former titleholders are in the field and strangely enough Worsham is not considered good enough to retain his crown among this group that seeks the $100,000 the Open will bring.

Par at the tough, windswept Riviera course is 284 for 72 holes.

The best mark in a U. S. Open tourney has been Ralph Guldahl's 281 mark set in Minneapolis in 1937. Nobody will predict that mark will be broken at Riviera but the general feeling is that it may well be approached, even with par for each round at 71.

Three amateurs stand a chance during this three-day meeting. Frank Stranahan, the millionaire's son from Toledo and newly-crowned British amateur champion, wants to repeat what Bobby Jones once did—win four major titles.

Skee Riegel, national amateur champion, and Bud Ward are in Stranahan's class.

Never to be overlooked is Bobby Locke, a man who has given the nation's best golfers innumerable headaches since his invasion from Johannesburg, South Africa.

Taylor Named

COLUMBUS, June 10—Fred Taylor, lanky first baseman from Zanesville, will be the 1949 captain of Ohio State university's baseball team. He was selected by his teammates last night to succeed Catcher Norb Ranz.

3 Ex-Champs Entered In Hill Climb Here

Three former national champion motorcycle hill climbers are to compete for prizes at the Gypsy Roamers Hill Climb east of Circleville June 20.

The national figures are Willard and Darrell Bryan, brothers from Groveport, and A. W. French of Columbus.

The three ex-champions are to compete with about 18 other cyclists, eight from Columbus and the rest from Michigan and Connecticut. No local riders are slated to attempt the run.

According to heads of the Gypsy Roamers, Circleville motorcycle organization sponsoring the climb, the event is to be held on a 90-foot hill on the McCoy Brothers farm about four miles east of Circleville on Route 22. The hill is said to be a 65-degree incline.

The hill climb is timed by two strings, each set to an automatic recording stop watch. The first string is stretched at the bottom of the incline, is broken giving the exact time the rider starts.

The second string is near the top of the hill, and the rider must break the top string, giving him his time for the run.

Purses totaling $350 are to be awarded the top riders of the day.

Localite Helps Track Star Keep In Tip-Top Shape

The old saw about "mixing business with pleasure" was brought out this week by Gene Cole, record-smashing trackster for Lancaster high school when he revealed his training secrets.

Cole said he kept his legs (and heart too) in tip-top shape by a nightly two-mile jaunt to Lancaster hospital to visit his girl friend.

Cole said his nocturnal training program was set up so that he could visit his girl, Mary Kathryn Morgan of Circleville, a student nurse at the hospital.

Miss Morgan is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Emmitt Morgan of East Main street and a one-time beauty queen of Circleville's "Homecoming" festivities at the local school gridiron.

Tam O' Shanter Prizes: $55,300

CHICAGO, June 10—A total of $55,300 will be up in prize money for golfers this Summer during George S. May's combined "All-American" and "World Championship" tournaments August 3-8 at Chicago's Tam O'Shanter links.

This year's All-American professional tournament, which runs simultaneously with the All-American Women's and Amateur Aug. 3-6, will be worth $31,000 in prizes, with $5,000 to the winner, making it once again the richest event on golfdom's year-round schedule.

The All-American Amateur tournament will be worth $1,495 in retail merchandise values, and the All-American Women's tourney is to carry a prize weight of $4,500 all told.

BRAIN-SPATTERING DELAYED

Graziano, Zale Coolly Awaiting Their Big Brawl

NEWARK, N. J., June 10—Rocky Graziano, who indulges in a spot of modified mayhem now and then, and Tony Zale, who is addicted to similar pleasing pastimes, will work each over tonight, weather permitting.

These lads were scheduled to spatter each other's brains last night but rain postponed the slaughter until this evening.

Then, if the weather is propitious, the boys will stage their middleweight title brawl in the Newark ball park.

Postponements often have wrecked the chances of sensitive lads with keen nerves and some imagination. But it won't bother either of these lads.

Zale is about as emotional as a clam on ice. Rocky has all the imagination of a duck-billed platypus.

WHEN ROCKY heard about the postponement he remarked: 'What's the difference? I can flatten him just as easily tomorrow."

The weights showed both boys are razor sharp. Rocky scaled 158-½, a quarter pound less than Zale. This was about two pounds more than the champion expected to weigh.

They will not have to weigh in again and it is likely both will enter the ring at about 160.

Zale, who is quiet and well behaved at all times, took the postponement in good part. He has had all kinds of ups and downs in his career and a few hours delay won't matter much to him.

In this respect, Zale is much like Gene Tunney, who not only could, but actually did go to sleep in the dressing room while waiting to fight Jack Dempsey.

Of course, Gene did not look on Jack as the killer everybody else did in those days. It may be said with equal conviction that Zale doesn't think Graziano half the killer he's been painted.

Francis Albertanti, the tub-thumper de luxe who has been ballyhooing the fight, assures all listeners that the promoters had more than $260,000 in the till last night and, if this be true, the gate whould gross at least $350,000.

City Kids Loop Delayed; Team Goes To Church

Wednesday's game in the Circleville Kids League was called off when the Tomlinson team decided to go to church instead of playing ball.

According to the youthful league members, the kids loop is now shy one team, since the whole Tomlinson aggregation filed into Bible school rather than into a dugout.

However, prospects for getting a new sponsor (definition: one lad who can get his Pop to furnish a couple of balls and a stick) brightened Thursday with an offer from the Circleville Night Softball League.

Seems the older Circleville players would like to have a preview of the talent to come into the league in the next few years, and have agreed to have two of the teams play under the lights next week before a regular league game.

THE KIDS normally play all their games on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday mornings on the Corwin school diamond.

The Herald Carriers are leaders of the league, having whipped the Weavers and the Davises in their two season starts. The other team, City Cabs, will play its first game Tuesday against Davises. Monday's game is to be between the Carriers and the Davises.

Legion '9' Eyes Tilt At Hillsboro

The Circleville American Legion Junior baseball team makes its initial appearance under lights Friday night when it tangles with the Hillsboro aggregation at 8 p. m. at Highland County Fairgrounds.

The local Legion squad hopes to get a preview of the competition expected in the district tourneys, since their Friday night host is one of the five teams entered in the tournament schedule.

The Legion team will leave Circleville at 5:30 p. m. Friday from the Legion home.

Mumaws Slaughter Boyds, 16-1, Move Into League's Top Spot

Mumaws softball team romped into the Circleville night softball league leadership Wednesday night by scoring a 16-1 win over Boyds. Both teams had been tied previously with two wins and one loss each.

The Wednesday massacre of the high school team started off tamely, with both teams marking zeroes in their first inning at bat. Mumaws jumped into the lead in the second inning, however, posting three runs on a brace of errors.

Robert Eccard scored the lone tally of the ball game for Boyds in the last half of the second frame on an error and a passed ball.

Mumaws scored a single in the third inning, moving the lead to 4-1, were blanked in the fourth but came back in the fifth to score eight on three errors, three singles, a double and a homerun. The homer was belted by Ansel Roof, who now has two of the four basers to his credit in four games.

Lenny Hill, a relatively new pitcher for the Mumaws, held the Boyds aggregation down to the lone tally Wednesday by allowing only two hits and walking but three.

THE LEAGUE leadership copped by Mumaws Wednesday will be shortlived, however, since Tinks and Isalys, the other two teams previously tied for the top position in the loop, will vie for a tie with Mumaws.

The winner of Thursday's contest will hold a tie with Mumaws, both teams with three wins and one loss and the loser will be tied for third place with Boyds, each team having split four games so far with two won and one lost. Both the Thursday and Friday night games are to begin at 8:15 p. m. at Ted Lewis Park.

Boyers and Millirons, fifth and sixth place teams in league standings respectively, are to play their game at 7:15 p. m. Friday, followed by an exhibition game between Isalys and Belmont AC of Columbus.

City Kids Loop Delayed; Team Goes To Church

Wednesday's game in the Circleville Kids League was called off when the Tomlinson team decided to go to church instead of playing ball.

According to the youthful league members, the kids loop is now shy one team, since the whole Tomlinson aggregation filed into Bible school rather than into a dugout.

However, prospects for getting a new sponsor (definition: one lad who can get his Pop to furnish a couple of balls and a stick) brightened Thursday with an offer from the Circleville Night Softball League.

Seems the older Circleville players would like to have a preview of the talent to come into the league in the next few years, and have agreed to have two of the teams play under the lights next week before a regular league game.

THE KIDS normally play all their games on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday mornings on the Corwin school diamond.

The Herald Carriers are leaders of the league, having whipped the Weavers and the Davises in their two season starts. The other team, City Cabs, will play its first game Tuesday against Davises. Monday's game is to be between the Carriers and the Davises.

Legion '9' Eyes Tilt At Hillsboro

The Circleville American Legion Junior baseball team makes its initial appearance under lights Friday night when it tangles with the Hillsboro aggregation at 8 p. m. at Highland County Fairgrounds.

The local Legion squad hopes to get a preview of the competition expected in the district tourneys, since their Friday night host is one of the five teams entered in the tournament schedule.

The Legion team will leave Circleville at 5:30 p. m. Friday from the Legion home.

6 Other Counties Absorbed By Pickaway Angus Group

All Local Officers Reelected

Field Day Plans Are Polished

Formation of the South Central Aberdeen Angus Breeders Association encompassing six surrounding counties was completed here this week as an outgrowth of the Pickaway County association.

All officers of the Pickaway group were reelected to remain in office until the January 1949 meeting. They are Dick Huffines, president; Russell Wardell, vice-president; and L. A. Best, secretary-treasurer.

Eight representative breeders from Fayette and Madison Counties met with the Pickaway County Angus Breeders Association in the Court-Main restaurant with their merger proposal. Other counties to come into the newly formed organization are Ross, Hocking, Fairfield and Franklin, Best reported.

REASON FOR the merging of interests, the secretary reported, was based on the fact that the counties surrounding Pickaway do not have enough Angus breeders to support local associations.

The Pickaway association favored the proposal because it would give them a larger, stronger and more worthwhile group by working with breeders in adjoining counties, Best stated.

Name for the new organization was suggested by J. B. McCorkle, secretary - treasurer of the Ohio Angus Breeders Association and was forth-with adopted by the Pickaway County officers.

Best declared the organization now is emphasizing an enlarged membership campaign to be waged in the six new member counties.

Meanwhile, plans were completed for the Angus type demonstration and Field Day to be held Saturday on the Dean Godden farm, one mile south of Williamsport.

Five trophies have arrived which will be presented by Huffines to winners in the judging contests for juniors, adults and 4-H Club members.

F. K. BLAIR, for 12 years Pickaway County agriculture agent, will talk to the group on facts concerning the Angus breeders associations and Jim Warner of Ohio State university will discuss the place of 4-H Club work in a county beef program.

Type demonstrations will be led by McCorkle and Robert Duprey, of the National Angus Association.

The field day outing will be highlighted with a barbecued Angus beef dinner at 5 p. m.

Conon of Samos was a Greek mathematician and astronomer who lived at the court of Ptolemy IV Euergetes (207-222 B. C.). He is credited with giving the name of Coma Berenices to the constellation, and with having invented the curve known as the spiral of Archimedes. He also composed a calendar giving the time of the rising and setting of the fixed stars.
